THE AUTOPSY ANALYZED

BY THE SURGEONS WHO CONDUCTED THE OPERATION.

An Official Report Rendered by the Surgeons, in Which the Results of the Autopsy are Fully Traced--The Course of the Ball--The Real Cause of the Victim's Death.

PHILADELPHIA, October 1.—The American Journal of Medical Sciences contains the official report of the autopsy of President Garfield, prepared by the surgeons in charge. After stating that a consultation was held and the mode of procedure adopted, the report says the examination was then proceeded with, and the following external appearances were observed: The body was considerably emaciated, but the face was much less wasted than the limbs. A preservative fluid had been injected by the embalmer a few hours before into the left femoral artery. The pipes used for the purpose were still in position. The anterior surface of the body presented no abnormal appearances, and there was no ecchymosis or other discoloration of any part of the front of the abdomen

Just below the right ear, and a little behind it, there was an oval ulcerated opening about half an inch in diameter, from which some sations pus was escaping, but no tumefaction could be observed in the parotid region. A considerable number of purpura-like spots were scattered thickly over the left scapula, and thence forward as far as the axilla. They ranged from one-eighth to one-fourth of an inch in diameter, were slightly elevated and furfuraceous on the surface, and many of them were confluent in groups of two to four or more. A similar but much less abundant eruption was observed sparsely scattered over the corresponding region on the right side. An oval excavated ulcer about an inch long, the result of a small carbuncle, was seated over the spinous process of the tenth dorsal vertibra. Over the sacrum there were four small bad sores, the largest about half an inch in diameter. A few acne pustules and a number of irregular spots of post mortem hypostatic congestion were scattered over the shoulders, back and buttocks. The inferior part of the scrotum was much discolored by hypostatic congestion. A group of hemorrhoidal tumors, rather larger than a walnut, protruded from the anus. The depressed cicatrix of the wound made by the pistol bullet was recognized over the tenth intercostal space three and a half inches to the right of the vertebral spines. The deep linear incision made in part by the operation of July 24th, and extended by that of August 8th, occupied a position closely corresponding to the upper border of the right twelfth rib. It commenced posteriorly about two inches from the vertebral spines, and extended forward a little more than three inches. At the anterior extremity of this incision there was a deep, nearly square, abraded surface, about an inch across. A well oiled, flexible catheter, fourteen inches long, was then passed into this wound, as had been done to wash it out during life. More resistance was at first encountered than had usually been the case, but after several trials the catheter entered without any violence to its full length. It was then left in position, and the body disposed supinely for an examination of the viscera. The cranium was not opened. A long incision was made from the superior extremity of the sternum to the pubis, followed by a transverse incision, crossing the abdomen just below the umbilicus. Four flaps just formed, were turned back, and the abdominal viscera exposed. The subcutaneous adipose tissue divided by the incision was a little more than one eighth of an inch thick over the thorax, but was thicker over the abdomen, being about a quarter of an inch along the linear alba, and as much as one-half inch thicker toward the outer edge of the transverse incision. On inspection of the abdominal viscera in situ, the transverse colon was observed to lie a little above the line of the umbilicus. It was firmly adherent to the anterior edge of the liver. The greater omenutum covered the intestines pretty thoroughly from the transverse colon almost to the pubis. It was still quite fat, and was very much blackened by venous congestion, on both sides. Its lateral margins were adherent to the abdominal parieties opposite the eleventh and twelfth ribs. On the left side the adhesions were numerous, firm, well organized and probably old.

A foot note here says: "These adhesions and the firm ones on the right side, as well as those of the spleen, possibly date back to an attack of chronic dysentery, from which the patient is said to have suffered during the civil war."

On the right side there were a few similar adhesions, and a number of more delicate and probably recent ones. A mass of black coagulated blood covered and congealed the spleen, and left the margin of the great omenutum. On raising the omenutum it was found that this blood mass extended through the lumbar and iliac regions, and dipped down into the pelvis in which there was some clotted blood, and rather more than a pint of blood.

A foot note here says: "A large part of this had probably transuded from the injected material of the embalmer."

The blood coagulating had been turned out, and collected measured very nearly a pint. It was now evident that secondary hemorrhage had been the immediate cause of the death, but the point from which the blood had escaped was not at once apparent. The omenutum was not adherent to the intestines, which were moderately disturbed with gas. No intestinal adhesions were found other than those between the transverse colon and the liver already mentioned. The abdominal cavity being now washed out as thoroughly as possible, a fruitless attempt was made to obtain some indication of the position of the bullet before making any further incision, by pushing the intestines aside. The extremity of the catheter, which had been passed into the wound, could be felt between the peritoneum and the right iliac fascia, but it had evidently doubled upon itself, and although a prolonged search was made, nothing could be seen or felt to indicate the presence of the bullet either in that region or elsewhere.

The abdominal viscera were then carefully removed from the body and placed in suitable vessels and underwent an examination seriatum with the following result: The adhesions between the liver and transverse colon proved to bound an abscess cavity between the under surface of the liver, the transverse colon and the transverse mesocolon, which involved the gall bladder and extended to about the same distance on each side of it, measuring six inches transversely, and four inches from before backward. This cavity was lined by a thick pigogeniac membrane, which completely replaced the capsule of that part of the under surface of the liver occupied by the abscess. It contained about two ounces of greenish yellow fluid, a mixture of pus and biliary matter. This abscess did not involve any portion of the substance of the liver, except the surface with which it was in contact, and no communication could be detected between it and any part of the wound. Some recent peritoneal adhesions existed between the upper surface of the right lobe of the liver and the diaphragm. The liver was larger than normal, weighing eighty-four ounces. Its substance was firm, but a pale yellowish color on its surface and throughout the interior of the organ, from fatty degeneration. No evidence that it had been penetrated by the bullet could be found, nor were there any abscess or infractives in any part of its tissues. The spleen was connected to the diaphragm by firm, probably old, peritoneal adhesions. There were several rather deep congenital fissures in its margins, giving it a lobulated appearance. It was abnormally large, weighing eighteen ounces of very dark lake red color, both on the surface and on the sections. Its porenchyma was soft and flabby, but contained no abscesses or infractions. There were some recent peritoneal adhesions between the postereal wall of the stomach, and the posterior abdominal parites. With this exception no abnormities were discovered in the stomach or intestines, nor were any other evidences of general or local peritonitis found besides those already specified. The right kidney weighed 6 ounces, the left kidney 7. Just beneath the capsule of the left kidney, at about the middle of its convex border, there was a little abscess, one third of an inch in diameter. There were three small serous cysts on the convex border of the right kidney just beneath its capsule. In other respects the tissue of both kidneys were normal in appearance and in texture. The urinary bladder was empty behind the right kidney.

The track of the bullet was dissected into. It was found that from the point at which it had fractured the right eleventh rib three inches and a half to the right of the vertebral spines, the missile had gone to the left obliquely forward passing through the body of the first lumbar vertebra and lodging in the adipose connective tissu, immediately below the lower border of the pancreas, about 2½ inches to the left of the spinal column, and behind the peritoneum. It had become completely encysted. The track of the bullet between the point at which it had fractured the eleventh rib, and that at which it entered the first lumbar vertebra, was considerably dilated, and the pus had burrowed downward through the adipose tissue behind the right kidney, and thence had found its way between the peritoneum and the right iliac fascia, making a descending channel, which extended to the groin. The adipose tissue behind the kidney, in the vicinity of this descending channel, was much thickened and condensed by inflammation. In the channel which was found almost free from pus, lay the flexible catheter introduced into the wound at the commencement of the autopsy. Its extremity was found doubled upon itself immediately beneath the peritoreum, reposing upon the ilia fascia, where the channel was dilated into a pouch of considerable size. This long descending channel was already seen to have been caused by the burrowing of the pus fron the wound, supposed during life to have been the track of the bullet. The last dorsal, together with the first and second lumbar vertebra, and the twelfth rib, were then removed from the body for a more thorough examination.

When this examination was made it was found that the bullet had penetrated the first lumbar vertebra in the upper part of the right side of its body. The aperature by which it entered involved the intervertebral cartilage next above, and was situated just below and anterior to the intervertebral foramen, from which its upper margin was about one-quarter of an inch distant, passing obliquely to the left and forward through the upper part of the body of the first lumbar vertebra. The bullet emerged by an aperture, the center of which was about half an inch to the left of the median line, and which also involved the intervertebral cartilage next above. The cancellated tissue of the body of the first lumbar vertebral was very much communited, and the fragments were somewhat displaced. Several deep fissures extended from the track of the bullet into the lower part of the body of the twelfth dorsal vertebra. Others extended through the first lumbar vertebra, into the intervertebral cartilage, between it and the second lumbar vertebra. Both this cartilage and that next above, were possibly destroyed by ulceration. A number of minute fragments from the fractured lumbar vertebra had been driven into the adjacent soft parts. It was further found that the right twelfth rib also was fractured at a point 1¼ inches to the right of the transverse process of the twelfth dorsal vertebra. This injury had not been recognized during life.

On sawing through the vertebra, a little to the right of the median line, it was found that the spinal column was not involved by the track of the ball. The spinal cord or other contents of this portion of spinal canal presented no abnormal appearances. The rest of the spinal cord was not examined. Beyond the first lumbar vertebra, the bullet continued to go to the left, passing behind the pancreas to the point where it was found, where it was enveloped in a firm cyst of connective tissue, which contained besides the ball a minute quantity of inspicated, somewhat cheesy pus, which formed a thin layer over a portion of the surface of the lead. There was also a black shred adherent to part of the cyst wall, which proved, on microscopical examination, to be the remains of a blood clot. For about an inch from this cyst the track of the ball behind the pancreas was completely obliterated by a healing process. Thence as far backward as the body of the first lumbar verterbra, the track was filled with coagulated blood, which extended on the left into an irregular space rent in the adjoining adipose tissue, behind the peritoneum and above the pancreas. The blood had worked its way to the left, bursting, finally, through the peritoneum behind the spleen into the abdominal cavity. The rending of the tissue by the extravasatim of this blood was undoubtedly the cause of the paroxysms of pain which occurred a short time before death. This mass of coagulated blood was of irregular form and nearly as large as a man's fist. It could be distinctly seen in the front through the peritoneum, after its site behind the greater curvature of the stomach had been exposed by the dissection of the greater omenutum from the stomach, and especially after some delicate adhesions between the stomach and part of the peritoneum, covering the blood mass, had been broken down by the fingers. From the relations of the mass, as thus seen, it was believed that the hemorrhage had proceeded from one of the mesenteric arteries, but as it was clear that a minute dissection would be required to determine the particular branch involved, it was agreed that the infiltrated tissues and the adjoining soft parts, should be preserved for subsequent study.

On examination and dissection made in accordance with this agreement, it was found that the fatal hemorrhage proceeded from a rent, nearly four-tenths of an inch long, in the main trunk of the splenic artery, two inches and a half to the left of the colliac axis. This rent must have occurred at least several days before death, since the inverted edges in the vessel were united by firm adhesions to the surrounding connective tissue, thus forming almost a continuous wall bounding the adjoining portion of the blood clot. Moreover, the peripheral portion of the clot in this vicinity was disposed in pretty firm concentric layers. It was further found that the cyst below the lower margin of the pancreas in which the bullet was found, was situated three inches and a half to the left of the colliac axis.

Besides the mass of coagulated blood just described, another, about the size of a walnut, was found in the great omenutum, near the splenic extremity of the stomach. The communication, if any, between this and the larger hemorrhagic mass, could not be made out.

An examination of the thoracic viscera resulted as follows: The heart weighed eleven ounces. All the cavities were entirely empty, except the right ventricle. in which a few shreds of soft, reddish, coagulated blood ahdered to the internal surface. On the surface of the mitrol valve there were several spots of a fatty degeneration. With this exception the cardiac valves were normal. The muscular tissues of the heart were soft, and tore easily. A few spots of fatty degeneration existed in the lining of the membrane of the aorta, just above the semilunar valves, and the stender of the fibrin was found in the aorta, where it was divided about two inches from the valves for the removal of the hearts.

CONKLING'S RETAINERS

FIGHTING DESPERATELY FOR THE FATHER CHIEF.

Progress of the Fight Between the Factions---A Discussion as to What Arthur Will Probably do----A Stalwart Cabinet Suggested, With the Familiar Old Guard in Possession.

ALBANY, October 1—I met a friend of Roscoe Conkling to-day and said to him:

"What will President Arthur do now? Will he retain Blaine and the rest of the cabinet?"

"No," he replied; "he will reconstruct his cabinet, and that shortly, too. Blaine has tried to stay by 'knuckling' to the new president, but he has not succeeded."

"Who will be appointed secretary of state?"

"Frelinghuysen or Conkling."

"And who secretary of the treasury."

"Edwin D Morgan. Arthur is indebted to Morgan for lifting him out of obscurity, and he never forgets his friends."

"Will he retain James as postmaster general?"

"No, he means to march out all of them."

"And who will be postmaster general?"

"George Bliss, of New York."

"And who secretary of war?"

"John A Logan, of Illinois, or Ulysses S Grant, of Illinois."

"And who secretary of the interior?"

"Don Cameron, of Pennsylvania."

"And who attorney general?"

"Emory Storrs."

"Well," I remarked, "you have made a cabinet, but doesn't it occur to you that it lacks distribution among states? You have two or three from New York, and two from Illinois?"

"That is nothing," was the response. "The president is acquainted with New York men, and in selecting his constitutional advisers it is natural that he should stick to his adopted state. Besides, he might make George S Boutwell attorney general."

Then I met a half-breed of distinction and said to him: "You are no longer a supporter of the administration, I take it?"

"Yes, I am," he replied. "I will support General Arthur as long as he is president of the United States, and not the chief of a faction. When he ceases to be president of the whole people I will cease to support him."

"Will he make any changes in his cabinet?"

"I don't know. Not if he is wise."

"If he should appoint Frelinghuysen secretary of state, and Morgan secretary of the treasury, and George Bliss postmaster-general, and General Grant secretary of war, and George S Boutwell attorney-general, would you support him?"

"No, sir," was the reply. "I look upon Grant and all his supporters as dangerous men; dangerous to the institutions of this country. He must not put Grant into his cabinet."

"How about Morgan?"

"Morgan is all right, but Arthur is not likely to appoint him. He beat him for governor in 1876, and the memory of that remains."

"But didn't Morgan first raise Arthur into notice?"

"I believe so, twenty years ago. But since then Arthur has had an opportunity to make friends of his own and he has done so, and Roscoe Conkling is one of these friends."

"What will the republican convention do next week?"

"It will keep out Roscoe Conkling and admit Sam Lowery."

"And whom will it nominate?"

"I don't know. If there is to be a new ticket, it will have to be new throughout."

"Won't Conkling try to get in?"

"Yes, of course he will."

"But he won't succeed."

"No, sir, he won't succeed."

POUGHKEEPSIE, October 1.—The republican delegates to the state convention for the second district of Dutchess county, just elected, are anti-Conkling men.

TROY, October 1.—The fourth assembly district of Albany county, republican, to-day elected delegates to the state convention. Their party preferences are not stated.

BUFFALO, October 1.—The second assembly district elected delegates to-day who formerly were recognized as stalwarts and for Conkling's re-election are now announced to be "administrative men."

ALBANY, October, 1 — The republicans this afternoon elected stalwart delegates to the state convention from the first, second and third districts. The anti-stalwarts of the second and third districts withdrew from the convention and nominated rival delegates.

A Plot to Assassinate Conkling.

Special dispatch to The Constitution.

NEW YORK, October 1.—An alleged plot of a madman to revenge the death of President Garfield by the murder of ex-Senator Conkling, has been discovered by the police. The plotter is a person residing in Utica, where he has done business for fifteen years or more. The police's informant is a shipping merchant who does business on the East river. His name is Jackson; he is a reputable business man, and a stalwart republican, though not in any sense a politician. Mr Jackson, whose address is withheld at his own request, received, on Wednesday, September 28, a letter postmarked Utica and mailed the 27th. It was written by a man whom he has known and worked for 15 years ago, and whose acquaintance he had casually renewed last spring while on a visit to the interior part of the state. The message conveyed by the letter startled Mr Jackson very much, It was a calm argument apparently to justify the assassination of ex-Senator Conkling, who was the direct cause of President Garfield's death, and of the elevation of General Arthur, who the writer put it, "Was not half as big a man as Garfield." in three pages and a half of note paper he argued that Conkling had deserved death and ought to be shot, that patriotic citizens should organize to do it and that the sentiment of the country would uphold them in doing it. The writer conveyed the farther information that he was coming to New York on the occassion of the states convention on next Wednesday and that Mr Conkling should not be admitted, be the consequences what they might. Upon reaching the end of this singular epistle, Mr Jackson, horrified beyond measure, went to police headquarters in search of President French, whom he knew to be a warm friend of Mr Conkling, and in whose hands he knew the matter might be safely trusted. He reflected that something might occur to induce his correspondent to carry out his diabolical plan before Mr. Conkling left Utica; that the letter being traced to his possession in the event of an attempt at assassination might prove a dangerous witness against him. Mr. French was not in town, and Mr. Mason was sought. The latter was not there, but was telegraphed for to-day. Mr. Jackson called on Commissioner Mason, and was admitted to a long interview with him. He gave the Utica letter to the commissioner, and told him what he knew about its writer. This was, in substance, that he was a man about forty years old, college bred, and of good family. Fifteen years ago he ran a large hotel in Utica, and then Mr Jackson managed his business for him. Lately he has been agent for some mercantile interest. Jackson firmly believes him to be another Guiteau. He was unable to account for addressing him, except on the score of their old acquaintance, which meeting by accident on a railroad train they had renewed last spring. The Utica man had been given to various political vagaries, having, to the best of Jackson's recollection, been a delegate to the socialistic convention at Newark four years ago. Commissioner Mason perused the letter in silence, and observing that it had been written by a man of education, inquired if the sender was either insane or given to drinking. Jackson had never heard that he was either. The commissioner suggested that he should write a reply to endeavor to ferret out, if possible, the real plans of the Utica man, but this Justice Jackson refused to do, his principal desire being to get the whole matter off his hands. At his request Commissioner Mason promised to take entire charge of the affair, and consult about it with Mr Conkling and President French, and if necessary with President Arthur. He was of the opinion, however, that the letter should be construed in a less bloodthirsty spirit than that conceived by Jackson. Mr Mason, when questioned about the letter by a reporter, said that he was convinced after studying it carefully that it should be construed into an intemperate expression of opinion that Mr Conkling should be hissed out of the convention. He felt quite confident that no assassination was meant or intended. He shortly afterward left the police headquarters with the letter, the text of which, with the name of the writer, was withheld from the reporter with much care. It was learned only that the tone of the letter was calm and argumentative, and that Mr Jackson is addressed simply as a "friend." Mr Mason expressed his pleasure at the course pursued by Jackson, whose motives he appreciated as pure. What steps, if any, were taken to-night by the commissioner, Mason, to follow up the matter, was not known. It was surmised that he desired to communicate at once with President French and Senator Conkling, and that measures would be taken between them to watch the writer of the letter upon his arrival.

Working for Conkling.

WASHINGTON, October 1.—The report comes from New York that Arthur has tendered a place in the cabinet to Judge Lapham, the new senator from New York. This would leave to Governor Cornell the opportunity to call a special session to elect a senator, opening the way for Conkling.

STORMS IN THE NORTHWEST

In Which Great Damage is Done to Person and Property.

CHICAGO, September 30.—Telegraphic reports from various points in the northwest indicate the occurrence of a wide-spread wind storm which has proved very disastrous. It is reported to have lasted all day. The wires are down at many places and full accounts of the damage done cannot be obtained.

OMAHA, Nebraska, October 1.—A tornado, arising at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, nearly demolished Madison, a town of about 1,000 inhabitants in this state. The railway buildings were wrecked, and most of the private residences laid level, and two persons are known to have been killed. The telegraph wires are down, and the Union Pacific railway has sent out a train to the helpless people and for the use of its officers.

SACO'S GRIEF.

The Massacred Remains of General Carr's Command Exhumed and Mutilated by the Hostiles.

TUCSON, A T, October 1.—A special from San Carlos says Captain Bernard, of the First cavalry, has been appointed provost marshal of prisoners. Yesterday the son of Saco, formerly war chief of Victoria, died, and he applied, to-day, for permission to kill a squaw charged with bewitching him. Permission was denied.

The surrendered hostiles of Sanchez and other bands number 60 bucks, 73 squaws, and 76 children. Judge Advocate General Egbert is here to ascertain whether the renegades can be tried by military commission.

An officer of General Carr's command reports that when they returned to Ollica they found the Indians had exhumed the bodies of Captain Hentig and the soldiers killed there. The dead men had been buried in canvas tents, which the Indians have carried off, leaving certain articles which they did not want. Captain Hentig's head was mashed with large stones, and his body badly mutilated. One hand and foot were gone. The command buried the remains and fired a salute. One tent had been found here occupied by an Indian. It is believed the real murderer of Captain Hentig has been discovered. He will be arrested.

According to the United States census of the White mountain tribes just finished, there are 362 bucks, 1,171 women and children; acres of land worked, 447; medicine men, 7; farmers, 108; Indian police, 3; in the United States military service, 45.

Mrs. Garfield's Residence.

CLEVELAND, O, October 1.—It has been thought by some that Mrs Garfield would leave the farm and move to some place where she and the children could all live quietly together while the latter were being educated, but she is said to have stated that she would never leave Mentor; that it was there the family had spent so many happy days together; that it was in the true sense their home—the home General Garfield had provided for them, and which he loved so well, and she would live there the rest of her life. The noble woman still bears up bravely, though the return to Mentor was one of the severest trials of her long ordeal. Those who feared she would be compelled to succumb at last when the reaction set in feel encouraged by her continued fortitude.

The Train Robbers.

HOPE, Ark., October 1—In the examination held yesterday before the justice court of the robbers of the train on the Iron Mountain railroad their identity was established beyond doubt by the witnesses. They were bound over in the sum of $8,000 each to appear before the grand jury. Governor Churchill arrived yestsrday, and an effort is being made to induce Judge Young to hold a special circuit court to secure their conviction and sentence immediately.

The Cotton Spinners.

LONDON, September 30—A meeting of the committee of the Manchester cotton spinners' association, to-day, after considering the returns from various districts, resolved to adjourn for the week, when the question of further stoppage will be considered. A deputation was appointed to meet the Liverpool cotton brokers on the 10th of October. The adjournment of the committee probably means that the movement for the stoppage of the mills has collapsed.

Samuel of Posen.

New York Dispatch.

"Sam'l of Posen" is having it all his own way in utter defiance of thermometers, barometers, gas meter and every other human contrivance which has anything to do with information concerning the increase of heat. Of the various alterations and emendations which have been given the play we have already in a previous issue made mention. The audiences during the past week have been large, and up to last evening shown no signs of diminution.

Beautiful Things.

A reporter having heard so much said during the past week about Dougherty's wonderful display of elegant fine goods, took it upon himself to visit this emporium of fashion. It is truly a place where everything that is elegant to adorn a woman can be found. Would that I could describe those handsome dress goods, plushes, velvets, silks, satins, beaded cashmere, trimmings, etc., but to tell the truth a description is beyond the ability of a quill driver, and only Mr D himself or some of his many tasty salesmen are equal to this task. While passing through the house I heard customers along the counters saying: "Is not this a success, and does it not surpass any stock in the city?" Mr Dougherty really deserves success for he is a close student to his business. This, with his exquisite taste and fine judgment, has made him master of the situation, and won for him an enviable position in the mercantile field. This is a house that not only Atlanta but the state of Georgia should be proud of.

JOHN KEELY'S business is a mammoth enterprise. His stock never was so large as now, and certainly never more attractive.

In sheetings, blankets, bed spreads, comforts, towels, table lawns, etc. the captain has put forth extraordinary effort. He owns them cheap and can and will sell them as cheap as anybody. His millinery is something wonderful in its beauty and variety, whilst his silks and dress goods will rivet the attention of the most "distrait" observer, so beautiful and so cheap are they.

As to shirts, Keely is the acknowledged king of the shirt trade. He has them literally in thousands at prices which cannot be matched. He is selling them at the rate of 1,500 per week.

The stock of ladies underwear in this establishment commends itself to the notice of everybody—both in the made up goods and the Merino. Every garment which a lady can possibly need, can here be obtained at the hands of polite and efficient lady clerks. To give Captain Keely's fine stock of goods a thorough examination, will repay anybody. Read his notices.

Funeral of Eddie A. Kiser.

The funeral services of the lamented Eddie A Kiser, son of Mr M C Kiser, will be held at the First Baptist church at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The friends of the family and of the deceased are invited to attend.

THE GROWING COTTON.

A REPORT OF ITS PRESENT CONDITION AND PROSPECTS.

An Estimated Decrease in Production From Last Year of 34.05 Per Cent--The Causes of the Decrease Inquired into---The New Orleans Report Indicates Decreased Production.

NEW YORK, October 1. — Special reports to Bradstreet's from 500 cotton growing counties by 839 correspondents as to the condition and prospects of the growing cotton crop, published to-morrow, are as follows:

The condition and prospect of the crop, based on the yield, are shown more forcibly in the following table. This gives the actual average condition of the cotton crop as compared with that of last year at the same time, as indicated by our reports from each state, and the average for the whole country: North Carolina and Virginia, below last year's per cent 37.9; South Carolina, 39.8; Georgia and Florida, 28.8; Alabama, 24.7; Mississippi, 28.6; Louisiana 30.6; Texas, 39.4; Arkansas, 54.8; Tennessee, 46.2; average for the cotton belt, 34.5. Our last month's report indicated a condition 27 per cent below that of last year, no allowance having been taken of the increased acreage planted. Hence, during the month ending September 19 the crop seems to have been injured some 7½ per cent. It is very possible that under the depressing influence of the damage actually done to the crop some correspondents have overestimated it, and that the actual outturn of the crop will be somewhat larger than the figures indicate. It is evident, however, that the crop has been very seriously injured, and must fall considerably short of that of last year, even with the most favorable fall weather and full allowance being made for the increased acreage planted. It should be understood that we are not prepared to give an estimate of the final outturn of the crop. We hope to be able to do this in our next monthly report. Our reports indicate that a good fall and late frost will improve the present condition and prospect of the plant in each state, as follows: In North Carolina and Virginia, 2 per cent; South Carolina, 3 per cent; Georgia and Florida, 2 6 per cent: Alabama, 1 2 per cent; Mississippi, 1 5 per cent; Louisiana, 3 5 per cent; Texas, 4 4 per cent; Arkansas, .25 per cent. and Tennessee 2 3 per cent. The grade of the crop, as far as it is gathered, is reported to be very good, though from some localities there are complaints of the staple being poor. From North Carolina, parts of South Carolina and Alabama, there are also complaints, but as a rule our advices are that the rains were general and did little injury. With favorable weather for the next month, the crop should be a fine one in quality, and show a great improvement on the last year's growth in the amount of waste from damaged cotton. The mail advices summarized above have been supplemented as stated at the outset by numerous special telegrams from important points throughout the cotton growing region. These have borne on the condition of the plant between September 19th, the date of the mail returns, to September 28th, giving the state of the weather, etc. These telegrams show that an improvement has taken place during the past ten days, though not markedly; while not estimating the outcome of the growing crop, the report unmistakably points to a serious reduction in the present crop as compared with that of last year.

THE OPENING DAY.

The Details for the Opening Ceremonies of the Cotton Exposition, On Wednesday.

I. PRELIMINARY PROVISION—The gates of the exposition will be opened to the public October 5th, at 9 a m, at the established rate of admission, fifty cents; also the gates for photographic and other passes and complimentary letters of admission. A special entrance will be provided for the admission of persons holding complimentary letters of invitation to the opening exercises. These letters will admit holder and ladies and need only to be shown to gate keeper and retained by owner.

Special cards of admission will be issued to the chorus, who will enter at the same gate with those holding complimentary letters.

Turnstiles for the admission of exhibitors and their necessary attendants will be open at 7 o'clock a m, and they will be admitted to the exhibition buildings for the purpose of having their exhibits in proper shape for inspection on the opening of the doors. The exhibition buildings will be closed to guests until the conclusion of the opening ceremonies.

II. LOCALITY OF THE OPENING EXERCISES—The formal opening exercises will take place in the area between the railroad building and the grand stand, at the west end of the ground, where suitable platforms for speakers and reserved seats for the guests of the exposition and for the music and chorus participating in the exercises will be provided. THE DECORATIONS,

Which Will Add to the Attractiveness of the Exposition Buildings.

The decorations of the cotton exposition buildings promise to be novel, brilliant and beautiful. YESTERDAY a CONSTITUTION reporter visited the rooms of Mr G W Kingsley, 31 Marietta street, the gentleman who has the contract for the decoration of all the buildings, and was agreeably surprised at the vast amount of work that has been done. The reporter had conceived the idea that but little in the way of decorations would be done, and to his great surprise learned that from fifteen to twenty girls have been kept busily at work for the past six weeks in the manufacture of papio-flora, a new and beautiful substitute for evergreen festoons and cambric drapings. Papio-flora is nothing more nor less than bits of paper 2x4 inches in size woven together upon a wire and form the most beautiful, elegant and durable article for decoration ever invented. It has doubtless been already noticed by those of our citizens who have passed along Marietta street or visited the capitol. It was used to good effect in the capitol in the draping of the building on the occasion of the Garfield memorial. Some of it has also been kept hanging gracefully from the rope which is stretched from the cotton exposition rooms to DeGive's opera house. That papio-flora is durable has been proven conclusively, for although there have been several hard rains since it was put upon this rope, it is sparkling and brilliant as ever, and shows that it can stand the weather better than draperies of cambric or similar goods. Mr Kingsley has now on hand over twenty-five thousand yards of this papio-flora, which will be used in the decoration of the exposition buildings, and which together with the other decorations that he has prepared will make the buildings present an appearance of beauty unequaled by anything ever seen in this country before. Mr Kingsley's head quarters are in Chicago and he has been engaged to come to Atlanta solely for the purpose of decorating the exposition buildings. He is known all over the United States as the leading decorator of this country, and wherever extensive and elegant decorations are desired his services or his artists under his own supervision are always secured. All the most beautiful decorations in Washington on the occasion of the inauguration of President Garfield were done by him, and all who attended the conclave of the Knights Templar in Chicago last October will remember his beautiful and tasty work there. This papio-flora is made up into garland decorations for churches, fairs, etc, and is used in the manufacture of arches, wedding bells, emblems, ban-panel work, wreaths, shields, crosses, horse shoes, monograms, drapings, etc, and is of every variety of color. Mr Kingsley will have a few hundred yards of papio-flora over and can decorate a few private houses or business places. This manner of decorating is by all odds the most brilliant, elegant, cheap and novel ever invented, and all who intend to make any decorations, should apply to Mr Kingsley and have the work done by an experienced artist in an artistic manner.

Mr J J G Burghoffer, a celebrated artist from Chicago, is engaged by Mr Kingsley to do the ornamental painting work which is required. He is one of the most widely known artists in the country and bears an enviable reputation in all of the larger cities where his work has been seen. He reached the city several days ago and will remain as long as his services are needed.

These who prefer can purchase papio-flora by the yard and make their decorations to suit their own taste.

First Baptist Church Organ.

The funds are constantly coming in, but there is room enough for our friends to place a few dollars yet before the requisite amount is secured. Our own congregation must wake up and put down on the organ lively. Yesterday liberal subscriptions were given by General John B Gordon, Charles S Northern and John D Grew. Our choir to-day will be composed of Miss Emma Abbey, soprano; Miss Willie Deseker, alto; Miss Julia Abbey, organist; Mr Edward S Stokes, tenor; Dan R Evans, basso; James C Ford, cornetist. All are invited to attend. Services at 11 o'clock a.m. and 7:45 p.m. Preaching by the pastor, Dr D W Gwin. J W FEARS,

Chairman Music Committee.

Florida's Exhibit.

Messrs Joseph Voyle, superintendent, and Wm B Lipsey, collector of exhibits, arrived in the city yesterday from Florida, for the purpose of arranging the details for the exhibit of that state at the cotton exposition. They have selected a plat of ground upon which a building for Florida's exhibit will be erected. The grounds about the building will be ornamented with orange trees in bearing, Florida plants, etc. They will endeavor to make the ground and building as much like a Florida scene as possible, and will have everything ready in less than a month.

A Prompt Young Merchant.

It is with pleasure that we announce that Mr John J Falvey has returned to the city trade.

He has purchased the general grocery business of Mr W A Fuller, on Marietta street, and will now wait upon his friends and customers with one of the best and most varied stocks of groceries in the city. The reputation he established while in business on Peachtree street it will be his effort to maintain and enhance.

All parties in search for first class groceries should give Mr. Falvey a call.

A Model Hat Store.

Mr J A Christian, successor to L H Clarke, No 6 Whitehall street, just returned from New York, Philadelphia and Boston, where he has bought the finest line of hats ever brought to this city. He is buying direct from manufacturers, for some of whom he has been traveling agent for the last five years.

Mr Christian will sell all stock on hand on account of broken sizes, at and below cost for the next ten days, to make room for his new stock.

Second Baptist Sunday-School.

The Second Baptist church has its annual thanksgiving services to-day. The additional feature this year is the Sunday-school room, which presents an entirely new appearance as a new carpet and elegant and improved seats have been substituted for the old benches. The ladies of the church have worked hard and a handsome floral decoration will add to the appearance of the room to-day.

Senator Voorhees's Lecture.

The lecture of Senator Dan W Voorhees, next Thursday night, for the benefit of the Young Men's Library association, is sure to be largely attended. The eloquent senator should have a warm reception in Atlanta.

—Mr John F Jones, one of the most successful planters in the state, was in Atlanta yesterday, arranging a display of farm products. Mr Jones's farm is in Troup county, just one mile from Hogansville, and is said to be the best arranged plantation in the state. The products displayed by Mr Jones are the result of his own labor. In the collection will be found every variety of seed, etc.

What the Papers Say.

Dublin Post.

A colored woman, wife of John Coney, living on the place of Hon. Joel T. Coney, was bitten by a rattlesnake on last Thursday afternoon, and died from the effects of the poison on Saturday night. She was putting her hand through the crack of a fence to reach a hen's nest when the snake bit her on the hand. Before she died her arm, side and portion of her face were fearfully swollen.

Gainesville Eagle.

Uncle Dan Stringer has a gold mine on a lot of his about four miles from the city, which is about to turn out a regular bonanza. Recent developments show ore that is fabulously rich, it being declared to assay way up into the hundreds for every ton of rock. Specimens which we have had the pleasure of examining present the gold throughout the rock in plain view to the naked eye. Uncle Dan says he is not going to quit associating with his poor friends, but intends to buy them all good clothes so as to make them look like his equals. Our size can be had on application at this office. There is no stock in the mine for sale. We congratulate Mr. Stringer on his good fortune.

Macon Telegraph.

BLAKELY, September 29.—Last night between the hours of 12 and 1 o'clock a party consisting of about a dozen masked men went to the residence of the jailer and demanded the jail key, which he refused to deliver but was compelled under the muzzles of pistols to surrender to them. A guard remained with the jailer, when the balance proceeded to the jail, opened it and shot to death Zandy Wright, colored, who was serving a sentence of imprisonment for hog stealing. His time would have expired in about ten days. He had a bad reputation, and on several occasions during his imprisonment he threatened, when released, to kill several persons, including the jailer. The affair is greatly regretted by the quiet and peaceable citizens of Blakely.

Hawkinsville Dispatch.

Mr. John P. Lee and his wife, May Lee, of Twiggs county, are aged respectively seventy-six and seventy-two years. They have raised eleven children, ten of whom are now living and all married, except the youngest son, who is twenty-seven years old and still lives with his parents. The oldest is Mrs. Eliza Brown, aged fifty-one years. This aged couple have, in all their family, one hundred and thirteen children, fourteen of whom are great grand children. Mr. Lee has lived on his present place in Twiggs county, thirty-five years, and has never purchased but sixteen bushels of corn in his life. Up to the first of August of this year, he had three hundred bushels of old corn in his crib. We learn these facts from his nephew, Mr. J. L. Roland, of Dooly county, who paid them a visit the present summer.

McDuffie Journal.

On Friday morning last Mr. Hillman Reeves, who lives in the vicinity of Dearing, in this county, committed suicide by jumping into a well. On the day before he attempted to cut his throat but was prevented, and a watch kept on his movements. He was sitting at the breakfast table on Friday morning when he suddenly arose and rushed out of the house and jumped into the well in the yard. His brother and a young man named Luckey, who were seated at the table with him, endeavored to catch him before he reached the well, but failed. The water in the well was twenty feet deep and the unfortunate man did not come to the surface after he went under. Help was summoned and with a pair of pot hooks attached to a rope they commenced to fish for the body. They succeeded in bringing the body to the top of the water when a rope was tied to it and drawn out. Mr. Reeves was subject to spells of aberration of the mind, and it is supposed that the act was committed while under the influence of one of these spells.

Perry Home Journal.

One of the saddest deaths it has ever been our melancholy duty to chronicle occurred last Thursday morning, the 22d inst., about two miles from Perry, on the Macon road. Tommie, the eldest son of Mr. Martin J. Nelson, a lad ten years of age, had been in the habit of helping his father pack cotton. He had so often and so efficiently performed his part of the work, viz: catching and letting down the door of the screw box, that he was considered quite an expert at the business. It happened, however, on last Thursday that the person whose business it was to knock off the pieces which held the doors, instead of knocking one end at a time, knocked both ends off simultaneously. The little fellow was not prepared for this, and was thrown back by the door, the back part of his head striking a sill that was under him; and the heavy door falling upon his forehead, completely crushing the skull. He lived only a short time, and was perhaps never conscious after the fatal blow.

Augusta News.

A mysterious circumstance came to light to-day just outside of Augusta, but the light is not bright enough as yet to entirely clear up the mystery. Early this morning as Captain Jas. L. Fleming was walking over his farm just across South Boundary street, near the swamp, he discovered a black silk vest on the side of a ditch. The pockets were turned, with the exception of one, in which was found a dollar bill of the South Carolina railroad issue. Seeing this, Capt. Fleming's suspicions were aroused, and, looking under a bridge near by, he found a black double-breasted coat and a black silk tie. In the ditch was a shirt, which was very bloody. The coat pockets contained two apples and a package of blue stone, about two ounces, tied with a druggist's red string. The articles were left by Captain Fleming in the place where he found them, and coming to the city he notified the authorities. Coroner Picquet will probably investigate this very mysterious circumstance. There was nothing about the clothes by which they could be identified, unless the shirt, which Captain Fleming did not examine, has a name on it.

Rome Courier.

The fact was published in the Courier several days ago that Mr. H. O. Hoyt, of Dalton, had taken the contract for grading the first ten miles on the Rome end of the Rome division of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, which is being built from this place to Macon. Mr. Hoyt, after spending two or three days in our midst, had his four-mule wagon hitched up, and he put back to Dalton, saying that he had abandoned his contract, for the reason that there was a condition in it which compelled him to finish his ten miles in a cerain time or forfeit fifteen per cent of the amount to be received for it. We have not heard from the railroad officials why Mr. Hoyt abandoned the contract, but it is clearly understood that there are two sides to the question. Mr. Hines M. Smith, the engineer of this end of the line, came in yesterday and reports the work of locating progressing finely. He says that in a majority of cases the right of way, where the line runs through a man's farm, is given freely, while in a few cases the land owners hold out for stiff prices, thinking they have a bonanza.

Athens Banner.

It is gratifying to us to state that the proposition of Mr. Seney to give $5,000 for building the chapel for Lucy Cobb Institute if our people would raise $4,000 has awakened a deep interest in the minds of some of our citizens who are best able to give to this cause, and they are responding liberally. The lists are not in such condition that we can give the exact amount that has been raised, but we understand several subscriptions of $100 have been made and a number of less amounts. The friends of the institution are consulting constantly as to the ways and means of getting the full amount, and with earnest workers in the field we believe there will be no great difficulty in getting what is needed. A large number of people are able to give from $5 to $50, and no one who can do so should fail to have a hand in this excellent work. We learn with pleasure that another handsome sum has been donated by an outsider. Miss Birdie Cobb has received a letter from Gen. Henry R. Jackson, of Savannah, in which he expresses a heartfelt interest in the matter and gives $500 to the building fund. Surely it will not be long before the full amount is in hand and ready to be applied to this good work.

Augusta News.

A horrible tragedy occurred yesterday a short distance from Augusta and just beyond our county line in Burke. A party of five citizens had gathered at the office of Magistrate Duncan Cox, near Green's Cut, for the settlement of a legal difficulty, and in a dispute which followed two of the party were killed, another seriously wounded, the whole crowd engaging in a general pistol practice. Minute particulars are impossible to-day, and, indeed, the affair is reported by eye witnesses and parties in the neighborhood to have been so sudden and so mixed up that it is impossible to say who shot first or who fired the fatal bullets. The general facts are clear, however, and horrible indeed. Mr. Thomas Smith and his two sons, Arthur and Mike, were on one side of the conflict, and Messrs. Charles J. Walker and Ed Palmer on the other. Arthur Smith was shot and killed by either Palmer or Walker, and Walker was killed by Tom Smith, the father. Mike Smith was seriously wounded, and it was thought last night that he could not recover. At last accounts the two men who escaped unharmed in the general shooting had not been arrested. C. J. Walker is well known as a son of Colonel A. C. Walker, and is remembered as the man who shot a Mr. Miller, in the famous Green Cut tragedy of several years ago. The affair creates a great sensation in the neighborhood, and besides the inquests which are held, the matter will undergo thorough investigation. Nothing is known of the origin of the quarrel and the fatal bloody vendetta beyond the fact that it was a magistrate's court difficulty.

I was born with an excellent constitution, but at the age of 19, having just finished my collegiate education, I fell into habits of dissipation. After six years of fast living I felt my constitution broken down. I put myself under the care of one of our best physicians. His treatment seemed to do me no good. Finally he said at best I could live but a few years, that my bowels, kidney and lungs were all threatened with consumption and were fast wasting away in certain decay. I tried everything advertised, hoping to gain relief. Finally I drifted into a state of melancholy and hopeless despair, suffering excruciatingly from dyspepsia, short breath and urinary catarrh. A year ago I saw Brown's Iron Bitters advertised. I used them, and they acted like a charm. I soon began to enjoy dreamless slumber—and now I feel myself a man once more, and have gained 54 pounds since using the remedy. I feel very strong, and can hold out a 45 pound weight. Office of Fulton County Commissioners of Roads and Revenues, June 8, 1881:

The foregoing petition for the establishment of a new Militia District is referred to Samuel Hape, E M Taliaferro, and Thomas A Poole, who are hereby appointed commissioners for the purpose of reporting upon the necessity and expediency for the creation of a new Militia District and to lay out and define the lines for the same.

By order of the Board of Commissioners.
JOHN T. COOPER, Clerk.

IN RE:—The laying out of a new Militia District in Fulton county from 530th and 1332d districts:

The undersigned commissioners to whom has been referred the petition to lay out a new district from the 530th and 1332d districts beg to report—that it is inexpedient to lay out the new district as prayed for in said petition because the said district would be a matter of public inconvenience, but inasmuch as the said petition involves a change of the lines between the 530th and 1332d districts, your commissioners recommend as follows: That the lines of the 1332d district be so changed as to commence at a point on the line fo Bryant's district, between land lots Nos 161 and 165, and to run east to the northeast corner of land lot No 125; thence south to the Clayton county line; thence west to the southwest corner of land lot No 161; and thence north to the commencing point, the territory included within said lines to be known as District No 1332. Respectfully submitted.

SAMUEL HAPE,
T. A. POOLE,
Commissioners.

To the Honorable Commissioners of Fulton county:

Having been appointed a commissioner with T A Poole, Esq and Dr Hape, to consider the propriety of forming a new district in the eastern part of the county, south of Atlanta, and not agreeing with the other commissioners, I beg leave to report that, in my opinion, it is the wish of a majority of the people of said part of the county, and it would certainly be to their convenience to have a district laid off, say bounded on the north by the city and South Atlanta district; east by DeKalb county; south by Clayton county; west, commencing on the Clayton line at the southwest corner of lot No 65, to embrace five ranges of lots running north along the original lines to the city limits. The reasons for wanting a new district are that a majority of the voters and the people are remote from the places of holding court and voting, to-wit: East Point and West End. Respectfully submitted. ED M. TALIAFERRO.

Court of Fulton County Commissioners of Roads and Revenues, September Session, 1881:

It is ordered that a new Militia District be established within the lines as laid out and defined by the report of E M Taliaferro, one of the commissioners appointed, and that said report be made the judgment of this court, said district to be known by name as the South Bend district, and the election precinct and place of holding justices courts to be located at Henderson's store, on land lot 28.

TRADE S.S.S. MARK.

For Eczema, Scrofula, Catarrh, Rheumatism, all Skin Diseases, and as a Blood Purifier.

It is an admitted fact, that at least nine-tenths of diseases proceed from or are caused by some impurity of the blood. Hence, any medicine possessing the property of purifying the blood will cure all such diseases.

Upon overwhelming evidence is S S S known to be a Blood Purifier. But we give it glory enough in proclaiming it an INFALLIBLE SPECIFIC for Syphilis, eradicator of Mercury from the system, and a cure for Scrofula, Rheumatism and all Chronic Skin Diseases.

HISTORY OF A MOST REMARKABLE CASE.

SALAMANCA, N Y, July 30, 1881.

During the last five years I have been troubled greatly with Secondary Syphilis. Had scalp sores, sores in my nostrils and ears. I tried everything known to the medical fraternity, without relief. By accident I heard of S S S and at once procured six bottles from Syracuse, N Y, and commenced taking it, gradually increasing the dose until I took from three to five table-spoons full three times a day. The six bottles were soon consumed, and I saw no visible signs of improvement and wrote you that the remedy was worthless. Seeing that you had so much faith in it I decided to take six more bottles. I concluded to make short work of them and took from six to seven table-spoons full five to six times a day. After taking four and one-half bottles this way, an eruption appeared on my face and body, where the old sores were the skin all peeled off and the sores discharged freely for three days or more, after which they healed nicely, leaving the skin smooth. I was somewhat sick in consequence of the eruption, but after the sores healed grew better, and in two weeks gained twen'y-five pounds, and now feel like a new man.

Three months have passed since I quit taking S S S, and there is no symptom of the disease remaining. I am certain that I am permanently cured and that S S S did it. It stands unequaled as a remedy and is a blessing to those unfortunate cases (as I was) who will take it. If you have any doubtful ones on your list send me their address and I will give them a general history of my case.

You can use my name in any way that will advance your remedy. JOHN S TAGGART,

THE COTTON MARKET.

CONSTITUTION OFFICE,
Atlanta, October 1, 1881.

New York—The cotton market remained steady throughout the day. At the opening futures were a fraction higher, but no quotable change took place until toward noon when an upward movement set in which continued up to the close. There seems to be no excitement in the market. Speculators are taking things easy, but express confidence in higher prices later in the month. The advance to-day places the months about 12@15 points ahead of yesterday's closing figures, and the market still points to higher prices. The spot market shows very little change. The tone is somewhat stronger than on yesterday, but quotations admit of no particular change; middling 11 13-16c.

Net receipts to-day 18,971 bales, against 31,961 bales last year; exports 15,648 bales; last year 14,265 bales; stock 379,184 bales; last year 330,625 bales.

Below we give the opening and closing quotations of cotton futures to-day:

Liverpool — Futures closed firm. Spots — Uplands 7¼d; Orleans 7¼d; sales 8,000 bales, of which 6,400 bales were American; receipts 3,000; American 3,000.

The local cotton market remains steady with prices sustained. A good demand is reported, and sales are liberal enough. Futures attracted considerable attention, and business in this line was reasonably active. Receipts to-day amount to 737 bales, but this is not a full report, as several warehouses could not be heard from. We quote cotton as follows: Good middling 11⅜c; middling 11⅛c; low middling 10⅝c; strict good ordinary 10⅛c; ordinary 8c.

WHERE is Blaine?

SAN FRANCISCO rejoices in the possession of some peculiar counterfeit coin.

BRADSTREET'S reports from the cotton belt indicate a decrease from last year of 34.05 per cent.

THE Georgia press association, which was to have met in this city on the sixth instant, will not meet until the 12th.

LAST week was one of violent and destructive storms in many parts of the country. The east suffered nearly as much as the more exposed west.

THE son of Saco died. The distressed parent wanted to kill a squaw in consequence, but was persuaded not to do so by the authorities. And Saco is sad.

THE Liverpool cotton corner culminated quietly, and to the satisfaction of the cornerers. It seems more difficult nowadays to break a corner than to make one.

ROOM for Roscoe seems to be the demand of the hour. The latest arrangement is for Arthur to take Lapham out of the senate, Cornell to fill the vacancy with Conkling.

THE official report of the autopsy on the body of the late president may be very interesting reading for some people, but the world at large is too busy to study the quarrels of physicians who, after all, are merely talking for business.

THE amateur train robbers in Arkansas are all under lock and key, and the authorities are considering the policy of a speedy trial. The trial cannot take place too speedily or the punishment after conviction be too severe. This new branch of crime should be nipped in the bud.

THE public debt was reduced last month something over seventeen million dollars, The internal revenue receipts are increasing rapidly, and so are the imports. The recent call for twenty millions in extended sixes can be duplicated before the end of another month, in the face of such revenues. Let the debt-paying business go on.

THE amateur cabinet makers are at work again. Last winter they arranged a cabinet—several hundred for that matter—for the incoming president, and now they are making up slates of a different pattern for his successor. It is impossible to present all the speculations on the subject, and it certainly would be unprofitable reading if we could. Time will disclose the extent of the changes that Guiteau inaugurated with his little bull-dog pistol.

THE state of New York is greatly disturbed on account of politics. The republicans are trying to shake off Boss Conkling, and the democrats will again attempt to crush Boss Kelly—both having a hard task on hand. Never perhaps in all the tedious and devious campaigns in New York have the republicans been so split up and embittered. Their state convention meets next Wednesday in New York city, and in every town in the state the stalwarts and half-breeds have fought for delegates like cats and dogs. The convention will be called to order by ex-Senator Platt, a stalwart, who will add to the machine delegates from the large cities all the contestants from the country districts. If he succeeds in manufacturing a majority in this manner, the half-breeds will bolt, and put up another ticket. On the other hand, if the half-breeds are able to control the convention, the stalwarts will bolt. A bolt seems inevitable, for greater bitterness was never known. The party is in an uproar, and strife and contention prevail. The democrats could easily snatch victory from such a state of things were they not handicapped with John Kelly, of Tammany Hall. The latter is to be shut out of the state convention which meets at Albany on the 11th inst., and if he finds that he cannot bargain to advantage with the split republicans he may subside, and New York will again become a democratic state.

ATLANTA'S OFFICIAL POPULATION.

On account of an error in the first published account of the population of Atlanta, many people of other states think this city does not contain more than thirty thousand people. To correct this impression we give below the population by wards, according to the latest and final revision of the census office:

First ward	9,886
Second ward	5,220
Third ward	4,491
Fourth ward	11,228
Fifth ward	6,584
Total	37,409

This was the population of the city proper on the first day of June, 1880; and when it is remembered how rapidly the city has grown since that time, and that the census figures do not include the country beyond the rolling mill, nor all of McPherson barracks, not even some of the new residences on Peachtree street, to say nothing of populous Edgewood and West End, we think it is not unreasonable to assume that the actual resident population of the city to-day is fully 50,000.

An official communication shows that out of the 37,409 on the census books the number of natives is 35,993; of foreigners, 1,416. There were born in Georgia 14,152 whites, and 14,696 colored persons; in South Carolina 1,163 whites, 489 colored; in Alabama 789 whites, 502 colored; in Virginia 429 whites, 633 colored; in New York 401 whites, 3 colored; in North Carolina 342 whites, 246 colored; in Tennessee 584 whites, 127 colored; in all other states and in the territories, 1,810 whites, 2,827 colored. Of the foreigners, 465 were born in Ireland, 471 in Germany, and 136 in England. The city contains 9,604 native white males, 10,066 native white females, 865 foreign white males, 524 foreign white females; 7,188 colored males, 9,142 colored females. The number of males in the city is 17,677, of females 19,732. The number of whites is 21,079, of colored persons 16,330.

ATLANTA'S GUESTS AND HOW TO ENTERTAIN THEM.

In three days the International cotton exposition will open, and Atlanta will be crowded with visitors.

These visitors will be men and women of intelligence, character and influence, upon whom it is important for many reasons that we should make a good impression. The exposition will be more than the most sanguine dared hope it would be. The city itself is bright enough and thrifty enough to challenge the admiration of any one. The one element of uncertainty is—entertainment. If this is inadequate or extortionate, everything else will go for nothing, and the exposition instead of helping the south will hurt it.

It is not our purpose this morning to discuss the question of inadequacy or extortion. These are matters that will rapidly regulate themselves, and must be tried before any reliable data can be had. We simply wish to offer a suggestion on the subject of general entertainment.

It is admitted on all sides that the most successful thing Atlanta ever did in the way of entertaining was the series of receptions she gave to the medical convention at its general session. While Atlanta cannot compete with larger cities in special grand entertainments, she has hundreds of delightful homes that if thrown open in receptions to the strangers in the city would make a happy impression. When the governors visit Atlanta after Yorktown, let each one of them be taken to some private house, and a reception tendered all of them on the same night. When the merchants of Cincinnati come, let them be similarly entertained. When the distinguished people who attend our opening exercises come, let them be similarly treated. Let it be known that Senator Vance will receive at one house, Senator Voorhees at another, Bishop Elliott at another, and so on through the list.

Will not Mr. Calhoun and his citizens' committee take this matter in hand and complete the arrangements? We have no doubt that twenty at least of the best houses in Atlanta will be cheerfully put at the disposal of the committee for such a reception. Will Mr. Calhoun look into it?

LAWLESSNESS IN GEORGIA.

A few days ago two prisoners in the hands of the authorities at Menominee, Michigan, were forcibly taken charge of by a party of lawless persons, dragged nearly a mile with ropes fastened around their necks and finally hanged upon a tree by the light of their burning dwelling. We had intended to enlarge upon this exhibition of lawlessness in a republican stronghold, where civilization is supposed to beat its highest, and give the organs a dose of their own medicine. But circumstances over which we have no control will prevent.

These circumstances are that a few nights ago, a band of lawless persons entered the town of Blakely, in this state, proceeded to the jail, demanded the keys from the jailer, and shot to death a negro who was serving a term for stealing a hog. This is worse than the Michigan crime, and is utterly without excuse or defense. It is stated that the negro had made threats against the lives of several persons, but if he had threatened the life of every individual in the state, the crime of those who shot him would be nothing less than coldblooded, cowardly murder.

It is not stated that these assassins were disguised, and it is to be hoped that the jailer can identify them, and that he will have grit enough to cause them to be arrested. If he had taken the precaution to fire his pistol in the air, when these cowardly wretches made their appearance at the jail the unfortunate negro would not have been murdered; as it is, the citizens of Early county will have to be held responsible for a state of affairs which permits a gang of cowardly desperadoes to outrage the law by murdering a negro who was in jail and who was utterly powerless to harm any one, no matter what threats he might have made. We hope to see a strenuous effort made to bring the assassins to justice. In the whole history of crime in this country we know of nothing more cowardly than the murder of this negro.

THE TARIFF COMMISSION.

The New York Times has elicited the views of the most prominent business firms of that vicinity with respect to the proposed revision of the tariff, and the probable action of the tariff convention which the monopolists and protectionists have called. The views of these firms, singularly enough, are as various and as diverse as the business which they represent. Mr. John Roach, for instance, relies on the tariff to relieve all the evils and difficulties incident to business. He thinks it will give "cheap money and cheap labor." In other words, he says it compels people to spend their money at home instead of sending it out of the country. If free trade is efficacious as between the United States and Europe, it would certainly be efficacious as between the states themselves, and but for the fortunate fact that the constitution is a free trade document, the fallacies of Mr. Roach would certainly be brought to bear with telling effect on inter-state commerce. Why wouldn't it be a good thing for the people of Georgia to spend all their money at home, instead of buying in New York, which is as foreign a market, so far as Georgia is concerned, as Liverpool? If protection is a good thing for nations, why wouldn't it be equally as good for states, cities and counties? Mr. Roach would characterize this as absurd, and so it is, but it is only less absurd than the theory of protection in which Mr. Roach believes. That theory has been put in operation for the benefit of such believers, but in the case of Roach, who is a ship-builder, it has practically ruined his business by driving American built shipping from the seas. If Roach is satisfied, well and good. We are not striving to increase his business by advocating free trade, but we are advocating a thorough revision of the tariff by the common sense of congress in the interest of the people who pay the taxes.

Strangely enough, every protectionist, whose business is supposed to be benefited by the existing state of things, has some well-founded objection to the tariff as it stands. But when one of these seeks relief in congress straightway the other protected interests rally their forces and contrive to defeat the measure. The truth is, there is no real desire among the protectionists to subject the tariff list to even a systematic revision, and the proposed commission of experts is simply a scheme to take the whole matter out of congress, where it belongs, and lock it up with a few spectacled asses who know as little about the practical workings of the tariff as they care about the necessities of the tax-payers.

EMORY STORRS refuses to defend Guiteau. Already a Chicago statesman, Storrs is now practicing to be a North American patriot. If there was a fat fee in sight, or the south was to be slandered, Statesman Storrs would go thundering all around the stump.

NOBODY ever heard of a controversial doctor becoming encysted. And yet this may very shortly happen. We believe the New York Herald will give eleven dollars to any person who will deliver Dr Bliss sewed up in a sack. In these days it is nothing strange to see editors grow revengeful.

JOHN SHERMAN will be known in the politics of the future as "Jenks's Baby."

THE New York Tribune thinks the country will be shocked if the democrats of the senate elect one of their number to preside over that body. Strange to say, few of the republican papers agree with the Tribune on this point, and this gives the whole matter a fresh and an additional coat of sadness.

IT would probably be very nice to go to Europe and hob-nob with Correspondent Smalley and the other prodigal sons; but Mr. Blaine is a statesman who is very careful of his home interests. He will probably want to go to housekeeping in 1884.

IF President Arthur is as shrewd as his friends pretend, he will undoubtedly bear in mind the fact that one element of Mr. Garfield's popularity was his quarrel with Conkling.

THERE is no telling where the pending controversy between the able surgeons of the country will end; but there is this consolation: They can't all lecture at once.

THE current issue of Puck tears the veil away from some of our professional philanthropists. The cartoon goes to show why the fund for the benefit of the Michigan sufferers is lagging.

IT will be hard to say that the people have resumed politics until the Hon. Montgomery Blair begins to scatter his prophylactic communications to the breeze.

MR. CROFFUT, who wrote the "Bourbon Ballads" for the New York Tribune, is purging and purifying in a foreign atmosphere. It is well.

SHOULD General Grant be made secretary of state, the foreign nations of the earth would be compelled to put up banks for the accommodation of the numerous members of the Dent family.

IT is a wonder that Jay Gould and his gang of monopolists haven't burnt Mr Windom in effigy.

THE fall season is now upon us, and the New York Tribune has made no effort to get up a negro exodus.

THE legislature utterly refused to discuss the dog law. Some of the more prominent members say that sheep are getting to be too woolly anyhow.

IT is a little curious, but somehow even the stalwarts show no inclination to consult Guiteau in regard to the new cabinet.

GUITEAU'S brother-in-law will endeavor to identify him with the class known in the newspapers as American statesmen. In other words, the brother-in-law will endeavor to prove that Guiteau is a lunatic.

DR BOYNTON was very quite along at first, but now says he doesn't propose to allow the surviving surgeons to escape.

NO British statesman can long elude the vigilance of the New York papers. We are of the opinion that the criticism of the metropolitan press prevents parliament from committing some awful blunder.

WE frankly confess that we are not willing to see Dr Bliss and his colleagues arrested until after Guiteau has been disposed of.

LITTLE Mr Billy Mahone is in serious trouble. If he votes for a republican organization of the senate he will lose democratic votes in Virginia, and if he votes for a democrat the republican repudiators will doubtless give him cause for grief. Little Billy's way out of this dilemma is to be taken suddenly ill—and if he is to call in a doctor we cheerfully recommend Bliss.

PERSONAL.

SENATOR DAVID DAVIS is largely gifted.

HON. JOHN A BILLUPS will remove to Macon.

MRS. LANGTRY is getting stout. We suppose Langtry is tickled.

MRS. LUCY HAYES will take her husband to England next month.

AS FAR as that is concerned I was always a stalwart.—General republican remark.

A. T. STEWART once paid $40,000 for a picture by Rosa Bonheur, and $60,000 for a Meissonier.

GENERAL RUSK, the republican candidate for governor in Wisconsin, began life as a stage driver.

"I LOVE men," said Queen Christine, of Sweden, "not because they are men, but because they are not women."

SENATOR JONES appears to be the private telephone of the new administration. He stretches from the capitol to Utica.

SENATOR HILL writes to a Washingtonian that his sufferings have been very great. He has lost one-quarter of his tongue.

EVERY morning a handsome bouquet is sent from the white house conservatory to President Arthur at Senator Jones's residence, on Capitol hill.

GARFIELD is the third to die of the fifteen members of the electoral commission. Senator O P Morton was the first, and Justice Clifford the second.

SIX Steubens, descendants of our ally in the revolution, Baron Von Steuben, sailed from Hamburg for America on Tuesday, to attend the Yorktown celebration.

AUGUST BELMONT, the New York millionaire, spends his summers at the United States hotel, Saratoga. He pays $1,000 a week board for the half dozen members of his family.

IT is said that Postmaster General James is really anxious to go out of office in order to accept the presidency of the Lincoln national bank, to which is attached a salary of $12,000.

DR. J. O. A. CLARK, whose European letters in THE CONSTITUTION have attracted so much attention, is about fifty-four years old, and is a graduate of Brown university, Rhode Island, having passed his freshman year at Yale.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR has accepted the resignation of First Lieutenant F D Grant, Fourth cavalry, to take effect October 1st. Since his graduation from West Point Lieutenant Grant has served on the staff of General Sheridan, at Chicago, with the rank and pay of lieutenant-colonel.

CEPHAS THAYER, of Medway, Mass., now in his ninety-third year, attended the funeral ceremonies of President Garfield, on Monday, in that town. He also attended the funeral of President Washington in 1799, being then eleven years old, and is still vigorous, both mentally and physically.

THE rumor, now freshly circulated, that President Arthur is to marry a wealthy New York widow is a revival of the old one which went the rounds of society last fall. The lady referred to is the widow of Marshall O Roberts. One of her intimate friends denies that there has ever been the remotest probability of such a match.

THAT insufferable bore, the singular coincidence man, is abroad in the land and calls attention to the extraordinary fact that the only presidents who have been assassinated—Abraham Lincoln and James Abram Garfield—possessed the same name. Another coincidence, quite as singular as the foregoing, has been overlooked. Neither of the murdered presidents were named Smith.

A PLEASANT little story is related of Governor Holliday, of Virginia, by the Alexandria Gazette. One evening last week an old colored woman on crutches entered a railway car in Washington. The car was crowded and the old woman requested a colored man to give her his seat, as it was impossible for her to stand. The man refused. Governor Holliday, who was in the car, overheard the conversation and promptly tendered the old woman his seat, which was accepted with thanks.

PASHA STONE, the leader of the revolt in the Egyptian army, is an American. He was graduated at West Point in 1845. He distinguished himself in the Mexican war. In 1856 he resigned his position as first lieutenant in the army and went to San Francisco, where he became a banker. When the rebellion broke out he entered the federal army, and in 1861 he was made brigadier-general. Having blundered in risking a battle with the rebels at Ball's Bluff in October of that year, in which the union troops were defeated, he was arrested and confined in Fort Lafayette in 1862. In 1869 he went to Egypt and became chief of staff under the late khedive.

COUNT DE GRASSE, the commander of the French fleet at Yorktown, was married three times and had six children, all by his first wife. The two sons died without issue. The four daughters fled to America to save their lives at the time of the French revolution. Two died unmarried at Charleston in the year 1799. The third sister died in New York in 1834. The youngest of the family, Sylvie, married in this country Monsieur Francois Norcisse Depau, by which marriage there were seven children, all American citizens, and they and their descendants are the only lineal representatives of Admiral Count de Grasse. The eldest male representative and great grandson of Admiral de Grasse is Theodosius C Fowler, of Llewellyn Park, Orange, N J, his daughter, bearing the name (Sylvie de Grasse) of her grandmother.

AMONG those who took a very high stand in the senate, especially during the session just closed, was Senator James G Parks, of the 11th district. As secretary of the judiciary committee he had the revision of all the bills that came before that body. Of the measures which he proposed and introduced, eight passed both branches of the general assembly and received the approval of the governor. Senator Parks voted on all questions that came before the senate, and he was almost always successful in his appeals to that body. On the last afternoon of the session, the penitentiary bill came before the senate for final action, and, by a vote of 18 to 16 was indefinitely postponed. Shortly after this Senator Parks addressed the senate in behalf of a motion to reconsider the action of the senate. The motion was carried without a dissenting vote, the bill passed and the house was thus enabled to act upon it.

SYDNEY LANIER.

CHARLES W. HUBNER.

I place a prism to my upturned eye—
The sun-god's golden arrow cleaves it through,
And wondrous, flashing splendor fills the blue!
A thousand shimmering rainbows arch the sky
In glorious intermingling radiancy;
The gross, the common fades from out my view,
And earth in Eden beauty shines anew,
Robed in her ancient virgin purity.
Such the etherial, glorifying powers
Of thy rare verse, O, crystal-souled Lanier!
For truth thy pen did potent warfare wage—
Ithuriel's spear it was, tho' wreath'd with flowers.
Lo art and genius weep beside thy bier,
O, bard, whose song recalls the golden age.

IN GENERAL.

FURNITURE ic now being made out of paper.

DURING the last year the English treasury received about $31 000 "conscience money."

THE number of verses written on the death of President Garfield is as remarkable as their general lack of merit.

HERR KRUPP, of Essen, has accepted a contract for the exportation of 25,000 tons of steel rails to the United States.

THE year 1881 will be remembered in sporting circles for the numerous victories of American horses at European races.

AMERICANS in London want to place a slab of American marble commemorative of the late president in Westminster Abbey.

AS FOR my induction balance—ahem—it will do for a mind-reader. It placed the bullet just where the doctors thought it was.—Professor Bell.

THE next president pro tempore of the senate will draw a $10,000 salary, this being the provision made for this officer when there is no vice president.

THE London Standard says that the revived interest in the confederate sterling loan was a novel feature. Large amounts were taken for Amsterdam at £2 10s.

MR. LORILLARD'S Iroquois has won in stakes this season $53,400. Thebais is the first representative horse of England from a financial point of view, having carried off $43,400 from four meetings. Bend Or's total is $11,000.

THE London Truth has discovered that the Americans are an ingenious people. Finding that the boxes in which American apples were sent in such large quantities to England, were afterwards of little use, they now pack the apples in coffins which command a ready sale.

NO offer having as yet been made for that nautical white elephant known as the Great Eastern, she will be sold at auction next month to the highest bidder. It is said that American capitalists intend to buy her, but what disposition they propose to make of the monster remains to be seen.

THE fund for the Garfield monument at Cleveland now reaches about four thousand dollars. The committee wish to correct the impression that subscriptions are limited to one dollar. Any amount will be received and acknowledged, but one dollar was named so as to make the fund as popular as possible.

TEN deaths have already been the outgrowth of Guiteau's shot. The first was President Garfield, the next was a gentleman of Camden, New Jersey, who dropped dead on hearing that the president had finally succumbed to the wound. Then the seven men who were killed by the funeral train, and last the Knight Templar who was killed at Cleveland.

IT is said by some one who has apparently looked up the facts that only seven days of national fasting and humiliation have been appointed by presidents since the establishment of the government, and they have been designated as follows: May 9, 1798, by Adams; January 12, 1815, by Madison; the last Thursday of September, 1861, April 30, 1863, and the first Thursday of August, 1864, by Lincoln; May 25, 1865, (postponed to June 1) by Johnson; and September 26 by Arthur.

DURING the past year the progress of discovery at Pompeii has been rapid. Several very important houses have been opened for the first time since their memorable closing up in the early years of imperial Rome. One of them is built and furnished on an entirely original plan. Some of the statues found are of bronze, and are said to be of exquisite workmanship. Furniture discovered is also of high excellence.

AMONG the remarkable operations performed in Germany recently by eminent surgeons, those in which the stomach or the abdomen had to be opened have been at once the most dangerous and the most successful. After the achievements of Dr. Billroth, of Vienna, in the removal of cancers from the stomach, comes now Dr. Schinzenger, a professor in the university of Freiburg, with two cases in which obstructions in the entrails had to be removed. In one case, that of a woman, a section of one of the intestines had to be cut and the severed ends sewed together. In both cases a speedy recovery followed.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Atlanta Puzzled.

Augusta Evening News.

Atlanta is at a loss to know who she will make governor.

The Country Waiting.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

The country is waiting until the poets shall have wept out their souls in halting verse and then business will be resumed.

The Work of Assassins.

Syracuse Courier.

An assassin has snatched from Ohio and given to New York what the assassins of free government in 1876-7 snatched from New York and gave to Ohio—viz, the presidency.

New Year's Wheat Crop.

Ohio State Journal.

Good wheat crops almost invariably follow seasons of drought, and wherever the nround can be prepared wheat should be put in, even if it has to be sown in the dust. The wise thing will be not to wait for rain, but go on with the seeding regardless of the weather.

Too Much Policy.

Memphis Avalanche.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION says that "Isham G Harris is the real choice of the democrats for president of the senate, but that motives of policy will dictate the nomination of Bayard." Too much of that sort of "policy" has dictated innumerable disasters to the democratic party.

Will Become a Permanent Formula.

New York Sun.

One of the favorite inscriptions in the funeral draping now going on, all across the continent, consists of these words: "God reigns, and government at Washington still lives." The deceased president was himself the author of this saying, using it on an occasion as like the present as could well be. He never imagined then how it would reappear on the surface to-day. But besides reappearing it is likely enough to become permanent now in our language, as the formula with which an old administration is rung out, a new one rung in, and with the acknowledgment of a Divine Providence over all.

A Plot that Was No Plot.

Philadelphia Times,

Vague rumors of the discovery of a plot to assassinate President Arthur are promulgated from Washington. The American people will treat such nonsense with the contempt it deserves. It is well enough for Mr. Bismarck to discover a plot when he wants a pretext for some violent action, but that sort of thing would not work in this country. While we have an abundance of cranks and fools, they are not of the kind that form conspiracies, and if they did there is law enough to deal with them. It is time to put away the hysterical excitement of the past few weeks and try to re-establish the reign of common sense.

In the Front Rank.

Greenesboro Home Journal.

In nothing does THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION shows its sagacity and enterprise more than in its correspondence, domestic and foreign. Letters from the latter, for the last few weeks, we have read with peculiar interest. Rev Dr Harrison, in his Venitian letter, which appeared in THE CONSTITUTION of last Sunday, notices a remarkable coffee house in that city and its patrons, from which we infer that the antecedents of its present inhabitants, are not unlike those St Paul found in his day among the Athenians.

Columbia, S C Register.

Which is the greatestest newspaper in the southern states? This question, long a mooted one, has been definitely answered by THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION. When it appeared in its enlarged and improved form, a few weeks ago, with its attractive make-up and captivating dress, it stepped high into the front ranks of journalism, and every day since then has been displaying new resources and new power. Now it stands facile princeps among southern newspapers. We desire no better testimony of the greatness of the gate city than that shown in the greatness of THE CONSTITUTION.

The New Ollendorff.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Have you seen the new president?
Yes, I have seen the nice new president.
Does the nice new president know his friends?
Yes, the nice new president knows his friends—every time.
Does the nice new elegant president remember his friends?
You can bet your sweet life the nice new elegant president remembers all his friends.
Does he remember his enemies?
Yes, he remembers his enemies.
Does he remember them by name?
He remembers them by name, solid.
What will the nice new elegant president do for his friends?
He will reward them.
And what will he do for his enemies?
He will compel them to get up and dust.
Is he solid?
He is solid.

WAYFARING.

From "Geraldine."

The way is long, O, Lord, that leads
To cooling springs and fragrant meads.
I weary of its weary length,
I lose all heart and hope and strength,
As here I halt my tired feet,
And pray for rest, so far, so sweet.

I thank Thee for a halting place,
Made glad by Thine own smiling face;
I thank Thee that the dusty way
Thy footsteps knoweth day by day;
I thank Thee that some path there be
From pain and care to peace and Thee.

I know my times are in Thy hand;
I long for light to understand
How thou canst for each pilgrim care,
How Thou canst hear each pleading prayer,
How unto Thee each soul is known
As if it walked the world alone.

And some time I may comprehend.
The way is long; but at its end
A clearer vision waits the sight.
In Thy dear garden of delight,
Wayfaring done, let me abide,
Where never falls an eventide.

ALL WILL BE READY.

The Cotton Exposition Buildings and Exhibits All Ready for the Rush.

The exposition will open next Wednesday according to advertised programme. The engines will all be in position, the shafting and machinery all adjusted and everything will be steamed up on Tuesday night ready to open the exposition on Wednesday. Every building except one of the annexes—the one intended for carriages, bicycles and similar goods—will be ready and most of them will be completely or nearly filled with exhibits. The goods of exhibitors are arriving now at the rate of about fifty car loads a day, and a large force of men is busy unloading and getting them into position. Work will be continued on the grounds through to-day.

It is impossible as yet to predict what the crowd will be on Wednesday, but safe estimates put the attendance at the park at not less than thirty thousand. Of course a large proportion of these will have complimentary tickets as they will take part in one way or another in the exercises, but it is not unreasonable to hope that ten thousand dollars will be taken in at the gates as the first day's receipts. The first excursion that will reach Atlanta is from Cincinnati and is due October 12th. Advices received by Mr Wrenn from Mr Blackburn, who is in charge of the excursion are to the effect that enough applications for tickets have already been made to fill the trains and that the excursion will be a grand success. It will be followed by weekly excursions from Cincinnati. After the excursion season has fairly opened there will hardly be a day on which some monster excursion from some part of the country will not arrive. At present the biggest occasion after the opening day promises to be October 27th, which is set apart as governors' day. All or nearly all of the governors who attend the Yorktown ceremonies will come from there with their staffs in special trains to Atlanta and visit the exposition. Several companies and regiments of military are expected to come with them.

A competent authority who has spent a good deal of time on the grounds estimated last night that something over half of the exhibitors would have their exhibits completed by the opening day, and that by October 12th the exposition would be in full blast. There are a great many exhibits now at the Cincinnati exposition that are due here after that exposition closes, which will be October 12th, but it is said that they can get permits to leave the Cincinnati exposition before that date. It is safe to say that by October 16th the International cotton exposition will be running for all it is worth. The greatest crowds are expected from the 20th of October to the first of December.

A STIFF SUBJECT

Calls Forth a Veto from Governor Colquitt.

A curious case has been brought to light through the exercise of the veto power by Governor Colquitt. It is not generally known, but it is nevertheless true, that there is upon the statute books of Georgia a law making it a felony for any surgeon, physician or other person to dissect or cut up in any manner a human body. This law provides that the punishment for such dissection shall be $500 fine or imprisonment for a certain time. This law has remained a dead letter upon the statute books simply because no one has seen fit to enforce it and because it was universally acknowledged that dissection served a most useful and beneficent purpose.

At the late session of the legislature several prominent physicians being unwilling to allow this law to stand when it was simply a menace and not an active statute, framed a law legalizing dissection and turning over to medical colleges all bodies of paupers or convicts not claimed within twenty-four hours after death. It was thought that this measure would provide them with a sufficiency of stiffs and stop the robbing of graveyards and despoiling private graves. Governor Colquitt, after considering the bill, carefully put his veto upon it, and it therefore failed. There is considerable feeling among the physicians, and the matter is discussed very generally.

GEORGIA GLIMPSES.

THE STATE AS A MOTHER WITH TOOMBS AT THE BREAST.

Some Complaints that the Child "Pulls" too Hard---The Need of Work at Home and Self-Independence---What our People Should do---Colonel Cole's Railroad Extensions, Written for The Constitution.

Old Georgia is slow but she is right sure. The sovereigns who have just adjourned didn't give anything to help out the exposition and maybe that was right and so the people are waking up to the emergency. Everywhere I go up in the mountains I find the people with a pocket full of rocks and all sorts of minerals and useful timber, which they turn over to the railroad agents for the grand exposition. I've no fear now but what our good old mother, as General Toombs calls her, will be fairly displayed. Well, she is a good old mother, but sometimes I think the general sucks her too much and too hard considering and now I suppose as the legislature has authorized the attorney-general to sue Joe Brown and company and break up the lease, the general will have a tit of his own and pull at it harder than ever.

I've seen beautiful specimens of gold-bearing quartz, and silver ore, and copper, and lead, and marble, and slate, and kaolin clay, and manganeese and corundum and so forth and so on, and when we do build a state house I hope it will be built out of our own material from the bottom to the top. I hope our own architects will draw the plan and our own people will do the work, for it's a shame on us that we have to depend upon our northern brethren for everything from a fish-hook to a meeting house. I never saw such white oak, and hickory, and poplar, and pine, and ash and elm trees as are along the line of Mr. Cole's road in Paulding and Polk counties, and our people ought to make their own wagons, and tubs, and buckets, and wheelbarrows and ax-helves and washboards, and plows, and brooms, and furniture, and if we don't know how let's get Major McCracken to bring down some men from Ohio to teach us, and let us begin to utilize the good things that the Creator has given us and be independent. I want the major to dot his whole line with small factories that will give employment to our poor children, and furnish a market for our timber. Why can't our folks make as good a wagon as the Whitewater, or Studebaker, or Jackson? I'm told there are over fifty thousand of 'em in Georgia, and they cost us about five million dollars. The time used to be when there was a wagon shop at every cross-roads, and two or three in every village, but these northern mechanicks have dried 'em all up. They couldn't compete, for they didn't have any machinery, and had to do all their work by hard licks. Railroads are good things, but if our folks haven't got anything for 'em to do but bring us down goods and yankee notions and meat and corn and hay from the north and take back nothing but cotton that dident average two cents a pound profit, they are not going to help the country very much. We must fix up to compete with northern mechanics and northern farmers, and we can do it. I see acres upon acres of good native grass everywhere I go; enough to winter all of our stock, if it was saved, but there are no mowing machines to speak of, and the ground is rough, and the rocks havent been picked up and not one man in ten has got even a scythe blade. Needent tell me they can't get 'em. We dident have 'em at my house and no money to buy 'em with, but we got one thing at a time and paid for it in broken doses. These machines have paid for themselves and more too, in the saving of labor, and the grass cut with a mower during the last month on my farm has brought more money than the wheat that was cut off the same land last July. It has paid for the mower and the horse rake twice over and was easy work, both on man and beast. We would have cut for our nabors but the rocks were in the way and so their hay is lost, and it was of more value than their cotton crop. My boy has got him a Dedrick press and is baling his hay in small packages, and he is going to press a small bale of fine cotton that come from Miss McCrae's cotton seed. It will be a hundred and twenty-five pound package, put up after Mr. Atkinson's plan, and I believe myself that these big 500 pound bales will go out of date before long and small packages take their place. The boy is going to send this bale to Judge Henderson as a sample, and he is going to send specimens of corn and oats and hay of all sorts, red top and crab grass and clover and pea-vines, put up in ten pound packages by a little hand press of his own invention. He was raking up the other day with a horse rake and I was sitting on the piazza looking at him, which I frequently does, when suddenly he stopped and hollerd "snake." He had seen that snake before when he was cutting the grass but he got away, and so I jumped for the gun and Mrs. Arp throwd down her work, and the children all run to the front, and the snake was coiled up under the rake, while my boy was setting up there over him, and as I come nigh he straightened out and started off and I just took a running sight blowed him into giblets, and he was an old highland mocasin and measured five feet long, and was either six inches round or six inches through, one or the other, I ain't certain which, and I carried him up to the fence and all the family come down to peruse him, and Mrs. Arp said it had a mate and the mate would come to it and bite some of the children for revenge, and so we had to take the snake away off, and Mrs. Arp, she has been on the lookout for the mate ever since, and peruses the garden and the front yard, and the back yard, and ain't right shore but what it is in the house under the bed. Ever since mother Eve got fooled so bad in the garden of Eden it looks like that woman has a mortal dread of snakes—but if they did let us down from paradise in the beginning, they have raised us up ever since, and Mr. Alexander was talking to me about 'em yesterday at Marietta, for he had just got a present of a gold watch on a birthday, and he told me that he did verily believe that there wasent a man in heaven but what some good woman sent him there. And I said amen with as much feeling as if I had got a gold watch myself. We men are rough, unseemly creatures compared with women, but these little evidences of love and sympathy, such as gold watches and the like do wake up our smothered emotions powerfully, don't they?

Well, I see that King Cole has been buying up a few more railroads. I wonder how many more he wants. He reminds me of old Tom Little on the Chattahoochee who keeps on buying land, and when I asked him if he wanted all the land in the country, he said, "No; he only wanted all that jined him."

The Cotton Corner.

LONDON, October 1.—The Manchester correspondent of the Standard says: The result of the meeting of the committee of the Manchester Cotton spinner's association yesterday, has strengthened the feeling that short time will not be adopted, and that against the "corner" is practically ended. The Oldham spinners' buying company is progressing satisfactorily with their business in Liverpool and in spite of the strong opposition on the part of the Liverpool brokers, about twenty limited companies of Oldham have already appointed their brokers. All accounts agree that the corner ended very quietly.

A NIGHT IN VENICE

AMID SIGHTS AND SOUNDS WIERD AND STRANGE.

Admiring the Spires Bathed in the Shimmer of Moonlight--The Theater of La Scala---A Visit to the Brera--A Bill for Dinner---Facts and Fancies About Milan and her People.

Special Correspondence Constitution.

VENICE, August 17, 1881.—Before bidding adieu to the cathedral of Milan, I ought to speak of the view on the roof of the building. The principal tower is 353 feet high, and the ascent to the roof of the church is made by 158 steps. A modern "lift" would be a paying institution, beyond a doubt, for these steps are very high, and it is quite fatiguing to mount them. When once on the roof, however, the visitor is well paid for his labor. He finds himself among a perfect forest of spires, each one of which is an exquisite work of art. Only a portion of the roof can be seen at one view. Standing with the back to the tower, you see a succession of smaller spires, each one having every side and every angle graced by a marble figure. From the eaves to the summit there are rows of miniature turrets, each one of which is crowned by a figure representing some species of fruit. At a certain angle of vision seats are fixed, from which the visitor, taking in the whole field, sees before him an orchard of marble trees covering several acres. No two of these figures are alike. Every niche, corner, crevice, angle and square contains a human figure, or the likeness of some object in nature. It is like a town in its dimensions, with some new object of interest at every step. But there is still a higher and grander point of view. After resting awhile, you ascend 486 steps, and at last come to the lofty platform, three hundred feet from the ground. There a panorama of varied beauty lies before you. The city looks like a compact mass of stone with glimmering outlines of streets—far off the mountains lie in a dreamy haze—historic battle fields lift a column or a pillar here and there to tell the story of the past, and the marble forest beneath you bears testimony to human genius. If there be any building on the earth grander than this I desire to see it. Yet, this structure has been severely criticised Goethe thought the tower was a blunder, and the front of the building in disagreeable contrast with the main body. This latter objection has been regarded as valid, and it is proposed to change the front so as to place it in accord. For my own part, I see nothing to condemn, but everything to admire. One of the most remarkable effects I noted in the morning service.

Sitting in the chair, elevated a few feet from the main floor, whilst looking at the statue over the principal door, and at the arches of the ceiling, the line was shortened, until the distance seemed not to be more than fifty or sixty feet, but when casting the eye to the floor, and looking parallel with my chair, I found that men and women who were coming in at the door appeared scarcely more than half the natural size. This optical illusion was very curious to me, although I knew the cause of it. On the ceiling there were no objects for comparison, and consequently no criterion for the measurement of space. On the floor, it was otherwise, and hence the mind was aided in forming a judgment of distance. One would scarcely suppose that four hundred linear feet of space would furnish this illustration, but it certainly does. The same law of optics requires painters and engravers to place the figure of a man, or some object of well known height, as a unit of measurement in pictures of buildings.

The theater of La Scala, said to be the largest in Europe except in Naples, I visited about 10 o'clock in the day before I left. The stage is 150 feet deep, and on it scenes of battles by land and sea are exhibited. Four thousand persons may be seated in its audience room. One architectural device was near to me. It is said that great singers are exceedingly anxious to make their debut in opera at La Scala. Whether this is wise or not, may be considered doubtful. My guide caused me to take a certain position in front, whilst the guard placed himself on the stage near the front, the spot, I presume, which the "star" would occupy. Then, in a very moderate tone, the Italian sounded a musical note. From the roof of the stage this note came back, multiplied a hundredfold in power. The rebound was not like an echo, but seemed to be a species of leverage given to the voice. If there were an appreciable moment of time between the sound from the lips and the rebound from above, the effect would be unpleasant, but it is not so. On making the experiment myself, it seemed as if the ceiling caught my voice and threw it forward with tenfold more power than I could command. Speaking from such a stage would be easier than common conversation, whilst a speaker's emphatic words would come with the force of a thunderbolt from the sky. I say that a debut from such a stage may create a false estimate of a singer's power, for a very weak voice here has help that may not be found elsewhere. This may be a secret of the artists, for aught that I know, but I am sure that the effect is one of a very singular character. Whispering galleries are numerous enough, but this is more than that. If a little of the labor and genius employed upon music to give effect and produce impression upon the masses, had been done to aid the preachers of the gospel, would the world remain in a state of spiritual torpor?

The great palace of the arts and sciences, called the Brera, contains a large number of statues and paintings. Although surfeited with pictures in Paris, I passed through the twenty-three rooms of this museum, where Titian, Rubens, Vandyck, Garofolo, Tintoretto, Paul Veronese, Bellini, Raphael and Leonardo da Vinci, and many more, are represented by their best works. Critics in art may be able to see beauties and splendors in all the works of "the old masters." To my eye there is a profusion, not to say excess of gaudy colors in most of them. They are not copies of nature as I have seen it. Well enough it may be to paint men and women in brilliant and vivid colors, but it is only now and then that nature puts on her holiday robes, and when she does, I have rarely seen them copied by a human pencil. All attempts to take her portrait are like the painter's work I see in all these galleries. Here sits a man, or a woman, copying a famous picture. In every instance, however beautiful the copy may be, it is not a reproduction of the original. A man expert in detecting bank notes that are counterfeit, for example, would see striking errors in these copies of pictures. Side by side, the original and the copy, I could see sometimes the sixteenth of an inch of difference in angles of the mouth, changing the expression entirely, or a false tint throwing one portion in relief that should have been in shadow, and scores of others, which I need not name. These copying painters would denounce me as an ignorant critic, I have no doubt, and I claim no skill or knowledge of art, in itself, but I am confident that I can tell things that vary, from those that are identical. Take, for example, Leonardo da Vinci's Last Supper. It has been more frequently copied than any work of art in existence. I have seen them ever since I can remember, and in all forms of art, in paintings and engravings. When I saw it near the church of Santa Maria delle Grazie, in Milan, there were three copies nearly finished. One of them is nearly as large as the original. Da Vinci painted it on the wall of the refectory of the monks, near the church, beginning it in 1483. The refectory was used by Napoleon's soldiers as a stable, and time and dampness, with bad treatment, have irreparably injured the picture. Some of the faces are sadly marred. But of those that are distinct, I do not think that one of these copyists had caught the right expression. I care not what others may say, but there on the walls was Da Vinci's picture, and before me were the copies. If I had seen either of the pictures on canvas elsewhere, I would have thought it very fine; but seeing the original and the copy together, must say that the new paintings are not good likenesses. The paint erhimself see as t o have had no knowledge of the costume or household utensils of New Testament times, and therefore used those of his own. But the skill with which he has painted a variety of faces, and given to them what he supposed to be characteristic expression, is indeed admirable.

From picture galleries to the dinner table may not be a sublime ascent, nor a graceful descent, but there is something practical which every one understands when the subject of eating is introduced. My American friend in Paris found it so, and I have had the same experience. According to my tastes, the Italian cuisine is better than the French, but the arts of hotel keepers are pretty much the same all over the globe. Some people get their money's worth at the table and others do not. Messrs. Cook & Son, of London, deserve the thanks of travelers in this behalf. Everywhere persons who travel on Cook's Tourist tickets, and use his hotel coupons, are requested to announce the fact on reaching the hotel. I did this at Milan, as elsewhere, but the clerk failed to note the fact, I suppose, as I found my bill made out, at departure, to be paid in gold. As it happened, there was very little difference in the two amounts, but I can readily see how it might have been otherwise. The bill is now before me, and for the benefit of any who may come this way, I will give the items as they are recorded. I came on Saturday afternoon and left five minutes before 1 on Monday. The charges are in Italian currency.

Apartment, two days	9 liras	00	centissimo
Service	2 "	00	"
Eclairage (lift)	1 "	00	"
Dejenner a' la salle	3 "	00	"

Caffe' a' la salle	1 "	50	"
Limonade	"	75	"

27 liras 75 centissimo.

In American currency, the entire bill was $5.28. If to this the dinner for the second day had been added, the amount would have been $6.23 cents, or nearly $3.12 cents per day. The omnibus fare, however, is properly no part of the bill at the hotel, so that the charge per diem would be $2.83 cents. To Messrs. Cook I had paid 8 shillings six pence per day for the coupons, so that my actual saving by this arrangement was the sum of 71 cents per day. It is proper to remark, however, that my ingenious host of the hotel D'Augleterre, in Milan, managed to overcharge me by the amount of one "dijenner," at 1 lira, 50 centimes. I had one cup of coffee on Saturday night, breakfast on Sunday morning, dinner in the afternoon, and breakfast on Monday. Only four times was I in the dining room, but I paid for five meals. The amount was small, however, and I do not know that the mistake was intentional, although the doubt is not in favor of "mine host." Another item, however, is not to be overlooked. In the bills, "service" is paid for by a distinct charge, but, as a matter of fact, you are expected to pay the servants some amount, on taking leave. A bright little fellow who was managing "the lift" interested me in his attempts to speak English, and it was worth the franc I gave him to see the grace and agility with which he doffed his cap and saluted me as I left the hotel.

Bidding adieu to Milan, without finding time to visit the "National Exposition," I began my journey to Venice a few minutes before one o'clock in the afternoon. On Sunday night a gentle rain had fallen for some hours, and all nature was rejoicing in the much needed blessing. The dust was disposed of effectually, and there was just enough of moisture exhaling from the base of the mountains to give them what I have called their "holiday robes." The ancient city of Brescia, war-worn and battered by the strife of kingdoms and of centuries, is in a romantic situation on the left of the railroad. Here the celebrated Chevalier Bayard, the knight who was "without fear and without reproach," accompanied the French army that captured the city in 1512. Here too, the cruel Austrian general, Haynau, battered walls and dwellings without mercy in 1849. Once the rival of Milan, it is now a place of comparatively little importance. Every rood of Italian territory is historic ground, and the intelligent traveler can never be at a loss for objects of interest but I could not tarry anywhere between Milan and Venice. Antiquities and statues, and pictures must all be passed by, at Brescia, Verona and Padua. Cremona, the place celebrated only for its fiddles, and Berjarno, just beginning its famous autumnal fair, lay on either hand; whilst near Brescia I saw with deep interest the battle fields of Louato, where the great Napoleon gained one of his first victories over the Austrians, and Solferino, one of the great victories of the last Napoleon over the same foes. The solitary promontory, looking like a lofty perch hidden among the clouds, is Sermione, where Catullus, the Roman poet, lived. In full view is a tall tower, marking the battle field of Solferino. The town of Deseuzano is situated on the southern shore of Lago di Garda, and a more enchanting landscape I have never seen than the one presented on that afternoon. The sun was shining with that tempered, mellowed light which often precedes, and sometimes follows a generous fall of rain. Turning a corner of the mountains, a beautiful lake lay embosomed in lofty peaks, with castles rising from the water's edge to airy nests high up among the clouds. Widening now, and narrowing then, as we sped on our way, the waters of the lake took all the colors of the rainbow, from vivid tints of vermillion to the sober, ashen-grey shadows of the hills upon the unruffled surface. Town, villa, lake, mountain and horizon all alike were clothed in a drapery of beauty which art has never yet copied.

Halting but a few moments at any point, we reached a little before sundown the railway track from Venice to Trieste, in Austria. I longed for the first view of world-renowned Venice, and watched a bank of clouds gathering in the west, fearful that the evening sunlight might fail us before the queen of the Adriatic came in sight. But I had scarcely time to feel this anxiety for more than a few minutes, when I saw the domes and towers of the great city of the sea rising up out of the waters, with every palace and tower bathed in the rich colors of a summer sunset. And this was Venice! A treasure arrested by human art from shifting sands and sluggish waters—a city whose power and prowess reads like a fairy tale, or the creation of imagination in the pages of romance.

A bridge of splendid masonry, two miles and a half in length, crosses the lagoons, and ends at the railroad pier on the Grand canal. The noise of the hackmen and the cabs, and the multifarious means of transport in other cities does not meet the traveler here. Drawn up in a line at the quay, are scores of gondolas, robed in sable, steel-prowed, and sharp—the one inimitable "insitution" of Venice. Gathering my portable baggage I soon found the porter of the "Hotel Victoria," and in less than two minutes was seated in the gondola, whilst my portmanteau was being delivered to the messenger of the hotel. Night had begun to throw her deep shadows on the water, and I was about to fall into reverie, when my ears were saluted by a stentorian shout of "Soldi! Seignor! Soldi!" What the fellow meant, I could not, at the moment, divine. But when I saw the extended cap in his hand, I remembered that the time had come "for all the world to be taxed." But I resolved to "hold the fort," and the "soldi" remained in my pocket. Baggage safely aboard, the gondolier began his work, and we moved rapidly up the "grand canal." Lights were peeping out from every corner and cranny, and as we swept under the arch of a bridge and turned our course towards the heart of the city, the effect was very novel. Darting here and there, red and green lights on the prows of the boats, whilst the black shapes that seemed instinct with life, gave forth no sound except the soft ripple of an oar now and then lifted by the boatman. Under towering walls and dark arches, by innumerable lights that seemed springing up by magic on either hand, I heard the sound of music, and in a few moments a circle of various colored lanterns appeared in the middle of the canal, and around them were grouped hundreds of black gondolas, filled with listeners. It was the evening concert in Venice. Musicians sang and played, while the people, congregated from private homes, and hotels, lounged luxuriantly on the soft cushions of their gondlas.

But I was hungry, and my boatman intended to earn his fare in the shortest possible time, so he darted up a narrow water passage, the strange voice of the gondolier calling out his cautionary signal, as we turned a corner or heard the plash of an oar ahead of us. At the landing place of the hotel a porter met me, and I was soon in comfortable quarters. The stillness of the night produced a sensation of awe. There was something almost supernatural in the very atmosphere. Out of the lumbering, thundering, rattling, roaring chaos of the stony streets, and chattering multitudes, and railway cars, I was suddenly transplanted to a spot in which almost unbroken silence prevailed. Now and then the murmur of the gondola gliding under my window, or the shrill voice of the boatman calling a lookout to his fellows on the watery ways—these sounds, few and far between, only broke the profound quiet. As the night wore on, the stillness was less and less broken, until I felt as if I had been suddenly plunged into the depths of a forest at the midnight hour.

My first night in Venice will remain in memory as long as life lasts. Everything so new, so strange, so wonderful! The past, with its mighty volumes of human history written in dark and bloody, or in glorious and brilliant deeds by stout hands and hearts—that past which can never come back to this city "throned upon her hundred isles"—came back to me in the recollections of a national life without precedent or imitation in the annals of the world.

Notice is hereby given that R. L. De Lisser, of New York, is no longer authorized to act as agent for Ricord's Vital Restorative.

The counterfeiter of Ricord's Vital Restorative tried to keep the agency and prepare himself with a spurious imitation and change the name from Ricord's Vital Restorative to Dr. Ricord's Restorative, to have a similarity in name.

The testimonials of Drs. R. Blanchard, C. Chevalier, M. Perigord, Liebig and Sir Thompson, are copied from my circulars.

FRAUD EXPOSED.

William street, New York City, instructing him to order that the bogus letter with his (Dr. Ricord's) name forged thereto and published in various papers be discontinued immediately, or he should commence legal proceedings without delay.

The letter published by deLisser and which he pretends to have received from Dr. Ricord, is false Dr Ricord, of 6 rue de Tournon, Paris, writes under date of April 13th, 1881, that he never knew R. L. De Lisser, of New York City, or sold him any formula. Neither has he ever authorized DeLisser to use his name to any remedy whatever, and that the signature of the letter published by DeLisser and purporting to come from him is copied or transferred from an original, but the text is not his handwriting.

The genuine can be had at Schumann's Pharmacy, Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Sigesmond agrees to forfeit $5,000 for any failure to cure with Ricord's Vital Restorative (under special advice) or for anything impure or injurious in it. Over 10,000 cures in the U. S. alone has been effected within the last five years.

HERE'S A CHANCE.—We learn that a competent, reliable and industrious newspaper man—one who is willing to work hard either inside or outside of the office, can hear of an opportunity by addressing the editor of the Rome Tribune.

TO THE CHAIN-GANG.—Yesterday Judge Glenn added four names to the city chain-gang list. They are Henry Stokes, ten days; Alonzo Deakle, ten days; John Holland, five days; Henry Brown, ten days; Levi Watkins, four days. The total number of days thus given the city is 38.

FORTY HOURS' DEVOTION—This beautiful devotion will commence this morning at 10:30 in SS Peter and Paul's church, corner Marietta and Alexander streets. Services will be held on Monday and Tuesday. Mass at 7 o'clock, benediction and sermon at 7:30 p m each evening.

FANCY FAMILY GROCERY STORE—The Messrs Manley Brothers have just received and opened a fresh stock of all such articles as are kept in a first-class house of the above character. These gentlemen have just come to Atlanta and embarked in business at 28 Marietta, corner Broad street. They bring with them a reputation well established as being gentlemen of intelligence, character and enterprise. Their goods are of the best quality, at reasonable prices, and will be delivered in any part of the city.

MORE TEACHERS.—Friday last closed the first month for the public schools of Atlanta. During the month every school in the city augmented considerably, and in many instances the capacity of the rooms and teachers is sorely taxed; especially is this the case with the Girls' high school. Yesterday morning the committee on teachers and text books, composed of Mr D A Beatie, chairman, Messrs Spalding, Hoyt, Roach and J C Kimball, met for the purpose of electing an assistant teacher for the third grade of the Girls' high school. The election resulted in favor of Miss Mattie Nunnally, one of Atlanta's most cultured and thorough scholars. Miss Mildred Fuller was chosen as supernumerary teacher for the same school.

THE HALLELUJAH CHORUS REHEARSAL for the opening of the exposition is to take place next Monday evening at 7 o'clock sharp. In this rehearsal we expect to unite all the vocal forces of Atlanta with full orchestra, and the hour is made thus early because the orchestra have an engagement later in the evening. This rehearsal will include the citizens' chorus, which has heretofore rehearsed at the Estey organ company's rooms, the young ladies of the high school and the select choir of boys, together with quite a number of Atlanta singers, who are familiar with the chorus, but have not heretofore taken part. All such will do themselves and Atlanta a great injustice if, for any trivial cause, they fail to attend. C M CADY.

P S—Necessary escorts for ladies of the choirs will be admitted, but there will be no room for mere spectators. C M C.

CITY AFFAIRS—The coming municipal election is advancing as a curbstone topic. For mayor Mr John B Goodwin, the retiring alderman, is prominently mentioned. His opponent, it is said, will be Mr Julius L Brown. For alderman Mr L C Jones, the senior councilman from the fifth ward, is a candidate. Dr Boring will oppose Mr Jones. For council Dr Mitchell and Mr D A Cook will attempt to succeed Mr Barnes in the first ward. In the second ward Mr John Berkele, one of the best chairman the street committe ever had, will be succeeded by Mr James E Mann. Mr Frank T Ryan or Mr Laird. Mr Buchanan retires from one of the third ward chairs to make room for Mr Ed Angier. Mr J C Courtney, General John B Baird or Mr Jos Smith, the McDonough street grocer. The fourth ward will be regreseated by Mr Frank G Haywood or Mr T J Healey, as Mr Boyd's successor. Mr Jones retires from the fifth ward to make room for his successor. Mr J S Lester is the only candidate so far in this ward.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD'S picture to be given away. Read the following: New York, September 27—To the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, 75 Whitehall street, Atlanta, Ga: You can inform your customers that in about two or three weeks you will be able to furnish them a very elegant oil chromo of our lamented president, James A Garfield, size 20x24 inches. This beautiful chromo is to be given away on the same terms as our former chromos—one with every five pounds of tea or ten checks. It is a perfect likeness, and is executed in the very highest style of art—is suitable to grace the walls of any parlor."

Don't fail to get one of these pictures. It will cost you nothing. Our coffees and teas speak for themselves. They can't be surpassed for quality and cheapness. This is the only tea house in the world dealing direct with the consumers. With our superior facilities a word to the wise is sufficient.

THE POPULATION OF ATLANTA.—We are indebted to Congressman Hammond for the following information in relation to the population of Atlanta by wards:

First Ward—Total population, 9,886; of whom 4,645 are males, 5,241 females; total number of natives, 9,857; of foreigners, 549; total number of whites, 5,775; of colored, 4,111.

Second Ward—Total population, 5,220; of whom 2,789 are males, 2,831 females; total number of natives, 4,944; of foreigners, 276; total number of whites, 3,332; of colored, 1,888.

Third Ward—Total population, 4,491; of whom 2,032 are males, 2,459 females; total number of natives, 4,388; of foreigners, 103; total number of whites, 2,064; of colored, 2,427.

Fourth Ward—Total population, 11,228; of whom 5,142 are males, 6,086 females; total number of natives, 10,925; of foreigners 303. Total number of whites 5,516, of colored 5,712.

Fifth ward—Total population 6,584, of whom 3,469 are males, 3,115 females. Total number of natives is 6,399, of foreigners 185. Total number of whites 4,392, of colored 2,192.

PINK EYE.—A new disease has recently made its appearance among the horses in Atlanta. It is known as the pink eye, and takes its name from the peculiar color which pervades the animal's eye, while suffering. The disease is spreading rapidly, and besides having penetrated nearly every livery stable in the city has attacked horses belonging to citizens. Though a disease of a serious character it has not, as yet, resulted fatally in Atlanta. A veterinary surgeon says that the disease is a typhoid pneumonia, that it increases the pulse from the normal beat to 90 and even 100; the temperature is made to run high; the bronchial tubes are affected and unless great care is taken inflammation of the lungs follows. While suffering from "pink eye" the horse is dull and lifeless; his head hangs low; he loses all appetite and his legs below his knees become perfectly cold. So far no antidote or cure, other than time has been ascertained. The horse when seized with "pink eye" becomes unable to perform work and should be treated with the greatest care. He will probably be useless from nine to fifteen days. A sedative of some kind should be given as soon as the disease makes its appearance.

CHANGING WATCHES.—Yesterday the fourth quarter of the police year in Atlanta began, and with it the entire force changed from one watch to the other. For the last three months Captains Connolly and Aldridge have had charge of the first or morning watch, while Captains Bagby and Starnes have been commanding the evening watch.

The changes will reverse not only the captains' time of service, but the men also, and for the next three months the first district, which is on the south side of the railroad, will be patroled by Officers Foute, McEwin, Glower and Reid in the first ward, and Officers Moss, Barnes, Manley and Sheridan in the second and third wards. The watch will come on duty at 12:45 a m, and serve until 12:45 p m. Captain Starnes will be in command. His second district, which is on the north side of the railroad, and is composed of the fourth and fifth wards will be in charge of Captain Bagby. His patrolmen are Officers Menkin, Christophine, Simmons and Norman in the fourth ward, and Officers Steerman, Parrish, Baird and Bone in the fifth ward. Captain Bagby's men will serve at the same time as Captain Starnes's watch. The second watch begins at 12:45 p m, and continues until relieved by the first watch. In the first district, on the south side of the railroad, Captain A B Connolly will have in the first ward Officers Crim, Joyner Mercer and Rapp, and in the second and third wards, Officers Brenning, Goodson, Spier and Veal.

In the second district, on the north side of the railroad, Captain Aldrich will have charge of Officers Russell, Weaver, Dennard and Wooding in the fourth ward, and Officers Couch, Flynn, Lynch and Thompson in the fifth ward.

During the morning watch Mr G P A Spyers will be in charge of the station house, while Mr James Buchanan will have control of the afternoon watch. In the past three months the fines imposed by the recorder in cases made by the evening watch was $3,671. The amount derived from fines in cases made by the morning watch for the same term was $1,699, making the total amount for the past three months $5,375. The supernumerarries will serve as vacancies occur. They are McWilliams, Holland, Starnes, Stroud, Simmons, Thurman, Glover, Moon, West, White and Brooks.

Something for Everybody to Read.

ADAM FOREPAUGH TO THE PUBLIC OF THE SOUTH.

For almost a generation, the great Forepaugh show has traveled throughout the east, the west, and bordering southern states, and has been acknowledged the largest and very best tented exhibition ever organized. With an invested capital of three million dollars, owning and using three great railroad trains, with a collection of rare foreign animals and birds, larger than ever have been seen in any country, with a circus in two rings indescribably greater than ever has been witnessed in the south, with twenty trained elephants, with nearly all the old world amusement sensations, such as the great Sedlmi and Villion, Anglo-Franco Bicycleactors and riders, with a most magnificent stud of trans-continental thoroughbred performing Stallions and Ponies, with all the distinguished riders, from England, France, Germany, Italy, and an avalanche of actors from the four quarters of the globe, all new to the southern public, and with a series of Pageants grand and wonderful beyond description, bringing all these with it, THE GREAT FOREPAUGH SHOW NOW MAKES ITS FIRST BOW TO THE PEOPLE OF THE GULF AND SOUTH ATLANTIC STATES! While the GREAT FOREPAUGH SHOW may be a stranger to the masses of the southern people, yet to the leading men, the editors, politicians and others in the south, very many of whom have visited or resided in the cities of Washington, Baltimore, Norfolk, Louisville and other cities in the border states during the last twenty years—to them my exhibition is well and most favorably known, for in all the above named cities, and especially in Washington, D C, and Baltimore, Maryland, my great show has exhibited every spring for many years, and it has been, and is always honored at the nation's capital by the presence of distinguished southern senators, representatives, governors, and prominent southern gentlemen in Washington, no less than by all the eminent men and women, from all parts of the country who reside at, or visit our country's capital, and the glowing eulogies pronounced by the press in all parts of the country, upon my great show, are familiar to the entire editorial fraternity throughout the south. In view of these undeniable facts, if any person should doubt the correctness of any statement contained in any of our advertisements, such person need but ask any editor, any leading citizen, who has at any time during the past twenty years visited or resided in Washington, D C, as to the character of the great Forepaugh show, and we are assured that a reply will be made that will banish all doubt from the mind of any one in regard to the superiority of my exhibition over all others.

THE REASON WHY

I have not brought my Great Show into the extreme south previous to this time is, that its magnitude, and the enormous daily expense of conducting it, made it problematical whether or not I could move it over the country, and secure sufficient patronage to justify me in bringing this colossal combination into your midst. The return of "good times," and universal prosperity all over the land, and especially in the south, now gives assurance, that this gigantic exhibition can visit you, and be transported over your railroads without delay.

I desire most earnestly and sincerely to assure the southern people, that I do not bring my exhibition into your country for the sole purpose of making money. I come here with it in order that hereafter, when it visits the south, it will need no introduction but will come known and recognized as the leading, the largest, the very best tented exhibition that ever asked your support. Such is the well earned reputation of the Great Forepaugh Show in the east, the west and the north and in the bordering southern states, such it has enjoyed for almost a generation, and such I know will be the verdict of everybody in the south, after they have seen this great and wonderful exhibition, moving over the railroads, parading your public thoroughfares, and after you have stood beneath its mammoth pavilions and witnessed its avalanche of new, wonderful and magnificant attractions.

Referring you to my printed bills, the newspapers, etc, for details concerning my exhibition, which is to exhibit at Atlanta October 24 and 25,

I am respectfully,
The public's ob't servant,
ADAM FOREPAUGH,
Sole Proprietor of the "Great Forepaugh Show."

NOTHING SUCCEEDS LIKE SUCCESS!"

CLARK'S TRADE O.N.T. MARK SPOOL COTTON.

WOUND ON WHITE SPOOLS.)

The manufacturers of CLARK'S O. N. T. SPOOL COTTON extend a cordial invitation to the public generally, to come and examine their machinery in motion at the Exposition building.

They would call special attention to their new and improved AUTOMATIC SPOOLING MACHINERY, which is one of the greatest marvels of mechanical ingenuity ever produced.

One of these machines will spool or wind over six thousand spools of cotton every day.

It spools or winds EIGHT spools of cotton at a time.

It lifts up the 8 empty spools, fastens the thread on each spool and measures out the 200 yards on all the 8 spools at the same time.

When it has wound and measured the 200 yards, it then cuts the thread on each of the 8 spools.

It next makes a little incision or slit in the edge of each spool, fastens the thread into the slit, and finally drops the spools, ready for the market, and begins anew with 8 more empty spools.

The incredulous are sometimes inclined to think that there is something supernatural about this machine, it is so wonderfully perfect and complete in every movement, and yet so simple that one young lady is all that is required to attend to each machine.

They will also introduce to the public for the first time their NEW PATENT TICKETING MACHINERY, which is also another very wonderful piece of mechanical skill.

They will also introduce BOX MAKING and several other interesting processes in connection with the manufacture of spool cotton.

The manufacturers of CLARK'S O. N. T. SPOOL COTTON are preparing to distribute, FREE OF CHARGE, 100,000 sample boxes of this celebrated thread, which will be prepared in the building.

Few people know anything about the origin of cotton thread, and it may be interesting to many, at this time, to know something about the manufacture of an article now so universally used.

Up to the beginning of the present century cotton thread was unknown. All the threads of that time were spun from flax, and nearly all the flax used at that time was raised in Holland.

Singular as it may appear the name of the great Napoleon Bonaparte is closely associated with the origin of cotton threads.

At this time England was engaged in a terrible struggle with France, and Bonaparte, with the view of cutting off supples, marched into Holland, captured Hamburg and destroyed all the flax in that port and in that country.

The old "axiom" that "necessity is the mother of invention" was never more fully illustrated than in this case, when the thread manufacturers of Paisley, were forced to seek a substitute for flax. The experiment of substituting cotton in place of flax was first made by PETER CLARK, and to him belongs the credit of first introducing cotton thread to the world. In a word, such was the humble origin of what is now termed spool cotton, an article now so familiar in every household and an article that now ranks amongst the prominent manufactures of our times.

The new substitute grew rapidly in public favor, but as yet it was a very different article from the spool cotton of to-day. The new thread was wound on balls—spools at this time had not been thought of.

Here again the great Pioneer in the thread trade, PETER CLARK, comes to the front with another invention, namely: That of the spool or bobbin for winding the thread, and to him belongs the honor of introducing to the world the first cotton thread ever wound on a spool.

It is now a little over twenty years since GEORGE A. CLARK came to America for the purpose of introducing the O. N. T. in the western hemisphere.

At that time the sewing machine was in its infancy, but with that intuitive genius which marked the man, he saw at a glance the important part the sewing machine was destined to exert upon the world.

The sewing machine sprang into existence before there was really any thread ready for it. At that time all the leading threads were made six cord up to number 40 only.

GEORGE A. CLARK at once saw the necessity of making a thread suited for the machine, and to meet these special wants he produced that celebrated thread known as CLARK'S O. N. T. SPOOL COTTON, six cord in all numbers from 8 up to 100, while all other manufacturers were as yet making their threads six cord to number 40 only.

The manufacturers of O. N. T. are in the proud position of being the largest manufacturers of spool cotton in the world, giving employment to upwards of 6,000 operatives.

The enormous increase in the demand for this celebrated thread has compelled the manufacturers to build an addition to their present works in Newark, N. J., and next year, when completed, will give employment to 1,200 more operatives.

There are several brands of CLARK'S THREADS, and there is a very general impression amongst consumers in the south that O. N. T. is wound on black spools. In justice to themselves the manufacturers of O. N. T. beg to correct this very general mistake, and would state that that the O. N. T. is wound on WHITE SPOOLS, and the bottom label of every spool is branded O. N. T. NONE OTHER IS GENUINE.

At this time the manufacturers of CLARK'S O. N. T. SPOOL COTTON are making a special effort to introduce this thread more universally in the south, and would esteem it a great favor if every lady would give it a fair trial and judge of its merits.

It is the popular thread in all other parts of this great country, and it only requires to be better known to become the popular sewing thread of the south.

JOHN KEELY'S

GREAT SPECIALTIES

FOR THE COTTON EXPOSITION SEASON.

Realizing the fact that with the great influx of visitors which the Exposition assures, will come a greatly increased demand for the leading classes of Goods pertaining to the Dry Goods trade, the writer has made extraordinary preparations to supply the same; and having been fortunate enough to secure several large lots of Goods at extraordinary low prices, it is his determination to flood the State of Georgia with the Greatest Bargains ever offered in that line. First comes

CLOAKS! CLOAKS! CLOAKS! CLOAKS!

Twenty thousand dollars worth of Cloaks! The Largest Stock of Cloaks, Jackets and Ulsters south of Philadelphia!

I have Cloaks for $1.25 each!

I have Cloaks at $50 each!

I have Cloaks at every intermediate price!

I have Cloaks by the thousand!

NOT ONE OF THEM WAS PURCHASED IN THE REGULAR WAY!

One lot was obtained from an Importer who, having Goods in the Custom House, was compelled to sacrifice some in order to raise money to pay duties on the balance. Other lots, bought first in one way, then in another, but all at a sacrifice, constitute at once the largest and cheapest lot of Cloaks ever offered in Georgia!

I can sell you a $3.50 Cloak for $2, and then make a good profit!

I can sell you a $5 Cloak for $3.50, and then make all the profit I want! An $8 Cloak for $5! A $10 Cloak for $6, and so on to the end of the list! A $15 Cloak for 10, etc, etc.

Justice to yourself, Reader, demands that you investigate this superb line of Goods after you have seen Cloaks elsewhere, but invariably BEFORE YOU BUY!

You will be delighted by doing so! You will be suited by doing so! You will save money by doing so!

1,200 Ladies' English Walking Jackets, half price! Everybody remembers the Bargains I sold last fall in Jackets. The Bargains I now offer in them eclipse everything previously shown!

Surprising Bargains in Misses Cloaks! A full and superb line, numbering some 1,800 garments.

I state unhesitatingly that I am prepared to show from THREE TO SIX TIMES as many Cloaks as any other house South!

700 Ladies' Cloth Ulsters, in all styles, fine goods, half price!

BLACK CASHMERES!

Having concluded highly satisfactory arrangements with an importer of Black Cashmeres, I now offer to the public the largest, most complete line of this desirable class of goods to be found in Georgia.

TAKE NOTICE.—I am responsible for the color of ever piece of Black Cashmeres which will be sold over my counters this season, which means that if a piece should prove to be a bad color, to lose its brilliancy, etc., I WILL REPLACE IT WITH A NEW DRESS.

I have often been laughed at by competitors for offering such guarantees, but I never do so except the case justifies it, and I NEVER FAIL TO RESPOND WHEN CALLED ON TO MAKE IT GOOD.

I have both Jet and Blue Black Cashmeres, and customers can have either by asking for which they prefer. I recommend the Blue Black for beauty and durability.

30 pieces Black all wool Cashmeres, 35 cents yard, sold last fall at 50 cents.
32 pieces Black all wool Cashmeres, 50 cents yard, sold last fall at 65 cents.
45 pieces of the best 75 cents Black all wool Cashmeres in America! Particular attention is called to this grade of goods. I am determined to sell a beauty at this price!
26 pieces Black all wool Cashmeres, 40 cents yard, sold last fall at 55 cents.
29 pieces Black all wool Cashmeres, 60 cents yard, sold last fall at 75 cents.
65 pieces fine grade Black Cashmeres, proportionately cheap! Everything made almost in colored Cashmeres, at a full range of prices will be found in this highly attractive stock. I will guarantee to beat ANYBODY'S sample of Black Cashmeres, no matter whether it comes from this place or from New York!

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS! SILKS! SILKS! SILKS!

In this department I have three times as large a stock as ever before. Hardly anything can be asked for which I cannot show! 150 pieces Black and colored Satins, embracing everything possibly needed. 50 pieces Black and colored Velvets, all prices, all shades, etc. Black Dress Silks 60 cents, 75 cents, 85 cents, 90 cents, $1 $1.10 $1.25, $1.35, $1.50, $1.60, and up to the very finest goods at $3 per yard. Colored Silks 50 cents, 60 cents, 65 cents, 75 cents, 85 cents, 90 cents, and $1 per yard—an immense line. Moire Antique Striped Trimming and Dress Silks. A superb line Black and colored Brocaded Silks in every possible color, quality and design! The largest line of short nap, tiger, striped and plain silk plushes ever offered in Atlanta.

DRESS GOODS! DRESS GOODS!

This department will be found to be unusually attractive, embracing as it does, everything from dress goods at 10 cents yard up to goods at $3. All the new Flannel Dress Goods, Cloth dress Goods, French Plaids and Ombre stripes, novelties in Beige goods, beautiful soft, limp fabrics on all the grades, Brown Bronzes, Blue, etc, in fact, this department is perfect. In the attention bestowed upon the purchase of dress goods, equal pains has been taken with the cheap, the medium priced and the fine goods, so that no matter whether a customer wishes Dress Goods at 10 cents, 15 cents, 20 cents, 25 cents, 35 cents, 50 cents 75 cents, or the very finest goods, a magnificent assortment in any of these lines will here be found.

MOURNING GOODS! MOURNING GOODS!

Beautiful lines of Mourning Dress Goods, both for deep and slighter mourning, including many new fabrics never before offered here. A splendid variety of Crapes, Mourning Fringes, etc.

HOSIERY AND MERINO UNDERWEAR, ETC.

The most complete stock of Hosiery ever opened in this house, is now offered for sale, embracing almost everything which could be suggested in that class of goods, and forming a list entirely too voluminous to bear insertion here.

SPECIAL BARGAINS!

Ladies' Bleached and Unbleached Clocked Real Balbriggan Hose 25c pair, goods which always brought 50c before. Ladies' Merino Undervests 35c, 50c, 75c, $1 each, all sizes made. Gents' Merino Undershirts and Drawers at every conceivable price and in unlimited variety as to quality, style, etc. The largest and best lines of Ladies' and Gent's Scarlet Merino Shirts and Drawers ever offered in Georgia. Childs' Vest and Drawers separate, all grades. Childs' Union Suits, Vests and Drawers attached, all grades. In fact to attempt to particularize the goods in this Hosiery stock, were simple folly, for the entire paper could be filled with its detail.

SHIRTS! SHIRTS! SHIRTS! SHIRTS!

Perhaps never has anything been accomplished in Georgia equal to

KEELY'S SHIRT BOOM!

It is now several months in existence, and is still in full blast, sales increasing every week; and no wonder it should be. Each enormous fresh delivery of goods offers to the public better value than the former.

THE SHIRT BOOM

was based and is being continued and greatly developed on the principle of

STERLING VALUE AND NO TRICKS!

JUST OPENED

3,000 Mens' Good Linen Bosom Shirts, 50c each, worth 75c.
3,700 Men's Fine Linen Bosom Reinforced Shirts, 65c each worth $1.
1,500 Mens' Superb Shirts! Highest type of cut and work, 75c each. This 75c Shirt is a popular marvel. Thousand of Men's Laundried white and colored Shirts! Thousands of Boys' Laundried and Unlaundried white and colored shirts! Everything possible in Shirts! Nothing but "bargains" in Shirts!

Nobody has any excuse now for appearing in Linen the very least sullied—for John Keely will sell a fine new Shirt for very little more than the price of washing an old one. The one-half of this "Shirt Matter" has not been told! Call and examine them! That is the way to test the facts!

HOUSEHOLD GOODS! HOUSEHOLD GOODS!

Superb lines of Sheetings, Pillow Casings, Towels, Napkins, Doylies, Blankets, Bed Springs, Comforts, Table Linens, etc, just opened, selling fast. Merchants are buying them, hotel and boarding house keepers are buying them. The public generally is buying them. They are going out fast. The prices are low. The qualities are good. For these reasons they sell freely.

SHOES! SHOES! SHOES!

400 cases Boots and Shoes in the act of being received just now. The stock embraces full lines of the superb Shoes always to be found here. Every pair warranted. No shoddy. No trash. No paper soles amongst them.

LADIES' CORSETS, UNDERWEAR, ETC.

The best 25c, 35c, 50c, 75c and $1 Corset in the United States at retail, will be found in this stock. Finer grade corsets in great variety. A superb stock. In Ladies' Underwear, the largest line in the State is carried. The styles are quite uncommon, and the prices much lower than customers expect to find them. This is almost the universal testimony of the Ladies.

A NOVELTY.

I have just purchased a superb line of Ladies' Hand Embroidered Underwear—the work done in the convents of France, on beautiful genuine French Percale, the beauty and cheapness of which garments cannot fail to render them exceedingly popular.

I have marked them cheap, so as to introduce them as favorably as possible, and I promise the Ladies quite a treat in their inspection. Be sure to call and examine the largest and best stock of goods ever offered in Atlanta, at
